G. O. P. FOREIGN PLANK IMITATED BY DEMOCRATS

Tribune's Influence Affects Action.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Republicans as well as Democrats, according to expressions heard yesterday, view the platform adopted by the Illinois Democratic state convention Monday night as a significant document. It is regarded as a fair sample of the platform the Democratic national convention may be expected to evolve in Chicago less than three weeks hence.

Attention centered on the foreign policy plank, which in its approach, however hesitant, to a nationalist stand on post-war problems, emphasizes the great contribution by the nationalist middle west under Chicago Tribune leadership to the statesmanship of the hour. Midwestern nationalism was dominant in the Republican party's platform framing and it bids fair to be no less influential in the deliberations of the Democrats.

Trust Roosevelt and Hull.

Like the Republicans, the Illinois Democrats declared for post-war international coöperation to preserve peace. Cautiously avoiding further commitment, they expressed confidence that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull "will in due course create the necessary details within the limits of the general principles enunciated, to fully protect American freedoms and the permanence of our American institutions."

Eliminated from the original draft of the Illinois platform was a declaration squinting in the direction of the international police force, beloved of the internationalists. This was a caution dictated by fear of nationalist sentiment, such as already has caused President Roosevelt himself to disavow any intention of committing the country to participation in an international police force in which American sovereignty and freedom of action would be sacrificed.

Shy Away from "Sovereignty."

In the original draft, likewise, the Illinois Democrats declared for a form of international coöperation which shall "fully protect American sovereignty." In the final draft, they shied away from the term "sovereignty" upon the preservation of which in international coöperation THE TRIBUNE has insisted from the very beginning of the argument and which became the cornerstone of nationalist doctrine. Instead of advocating a proviso "to fully protect American sovereignty" the Illinois Democrats wound up with a vow "to fully protect American freedoms and the permanence of American institutions."

The Tribune slogan of "no surrender of sovereignty" to another nation or to an organization of nations in post-war international coöperation was taken up by the people of Illinois and other midwestern states and became the keynote of the nationalism that swept this region and accounted for the renomination and reëlection in 1942 of Sen. Brooks and Rep. at Large Day of Illinois and other stalwart defenders of the interests of America first.

With "no surrender of sovereignty" ringing in their ears, the

GERMANS KNOCK OUT IOWAN'S TANK; HE'S SO MAD HE SHOOTS 35

WITH AMERICAN FORCES SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY, July 4 (AP).—Lt. Richard E. Martin of Cincinnati, Ia., lost his temper. His tank, along with a goodly number of others, barely had touched its tread to French soil before it was hurried to the front to help in the big push. When Germans smashed his tank with rocket fire on his first day in action, Martin got so mad he mounted the tank assault gun, personally killed 35 Germans and helped clean out the enemy so fast with the rest of the tanks in action that our troops in this sector actually were taking it easy this Fourth of July.

Rickenbacker Assails 'Aliens' Within U. S.

Capt. Rickenbacker.

Houston, Tex., July 4 [Special].—Never before in its history has America been called upon to face and fight for the survival, within its own borders, of the ideals that made it the greatest country in the world, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker declared here today.

"In our anxiety to be a half brother to the world let us not become a half baked brother to the universe," he said in urging that Americans be for America first and always.

The flying ace and hero of two World wars delivered his address at a Houston rally for the fifth war bond drive. It was entitled "Let's Recapture America."

Old-World Minded.

While pointing out that the new world was settled and developed by men and women from other lands—his own parents were immigrants from Switzerland — Rickenbacker warned that "there are too many old-world minded people in this country who are neither in touch, in tune, nor in sympathy with Americanism."

"In this country today," he said, "we have a dangerous situation with respect to hyphenated half-Americans and alien lifelong residents of America.

"There are some 5,000,000 aliens who have been in America from 20 to 30 years without becoming citizens. Hundreds of thousands of these non-Americans have prospered greatly in this country but their alliance and allegiance still lie beyond the seas. . . .

"According to a recent census we have some 20,000,000 people living in the United States who do not call English their mother tongue, and less than half of them were foreign born. Among this group are the 5,000,000 so-called citizens who vote but neither speak nor read English—5,000,000 hyphenated half-Americans. . . .

Asks Votes for Yank.

"And yet American boys at the age of 18 have to put on a uniform and are sent out to fight and die for America but can't vote. I advocate that every service man and woman, regardless of age, should be given the right to vote."

Rickenbacker said that in this country are more than 1,000 publications printed in 40 languages that reach more than 10,000,000 readers and that foreign language broadcasts are on about 20 per cent of our radio stations. He asked: "Why don't we teach these people to read and understand English?"

"In these uninformed foreign language groups," he declared, "we have solid blocks of people who are the tools of machine politicians of all parties, as well as the power politicians within the pressure groups of labor.

Fears Consequences.

"It has not come to the surface yet, but I predict that in a very short time it will, that in catering to the Polish vote, French vote, Italian vote, Russian vote, and other old world votes in this country we will increase the complications and endanger the effectiveness of our position with respect to the post-war world. . . .

"I say the time has come to step up and take inventory among the strangers in our midst—from high ranking government officials down to the lowliest laborer—and have them declare their intentions."

Uses Evanston Church to Hide Burglar Loot

Pvt. K. Altenburg.

From a basement room of the First Methodist church in Evanston, the suburb's police yesterday recovered the loot of a soldier turned burglar.

The soldier, Kenneth Altenburg, 21, of 619 Davis st., Evanston, who had been absent without leave from the De Ridder, La., air base since June 17, was seized early yesterday in a closed concession stand on the Clark st. beach in Evanston.

Loot Stored in Church.

He led his captors to the basement of the church, where he had lived for a week without the knowledge of church employes. In the basement room, ordinarily used for Boy Scout meetings, he pointed out a pile of clothing, guns, and household articles he had stolen in several burglaries in the suburb during the last week.

His arrest was brought about by William Lambert, an Evanston beach supervisor, and Policeman Francis Plunkett, who seized Altenburg in the beach stand.

Took Knife from Museum.

He admitted, police said, that he broke into the Evanston Historical society rooms in the basement of the Evanston public library on the week-end of June 24-26 and stole a large Civil war knife. On June 30, he said, he broke into the University club, 1704 Hinman av., Evanston, and stole clothing and other articles valued at $50.

His next burglary was in the basement of a large apartment building at 1637 Chicago av., Evanston, where he broke into six storerooms and stole articles valued at $350.

Police files show that Altenburg has a criminal record dating back to 1934. In 1939, he was sentenced to serve from one year to life in Pontiac reformatory for burglary. He later was placed on probation and entered the army Feb. 13, 1943.

He Wanted Action.

"I went straight for three years," Altenburg told police. "At first, I liked the army, I wanted to go overseas so I could get into action. When I didn't get it, I decided to run out on the army and visit my folks. After I ran out of money, I started to steal stuff."

He said he had attended the First Methodist church as a boy and consequently knew the building's arrangement. Authorities will confer with the state's attorney today to determine whether to turn Altenburg over to military authorities or hold him for civil trial.

FREED FRENCH TOWN HONORS YANKS ON 4TH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRANDCAMP-LES-BAINS, Normandy, July 4.—The citizens of this tiny fishing hamlet of 1,600 inhabitants, the first French commune to be liberated by the Americans, tonight turned out to honor the United States in a joint Franco-American celebration of Independence day.

But it was the village children who stole the show. They touched the hearts of the American soldiers standing in the flower bedecked village square and brought tears to the eyes of French women. The children, gathered before the fluttering flags of two nations, sang "America." For weeks they tried to learn the "Star Spangled Banner," but they could not master the difficult tune.

One boy spoke to the children of America. "We children of liberated France wish to tell you of the joy with which our hearts are overflowing," he said. "We shall do whatever we can to prevent your fathers and brothers from feeling too homesick by trying to take your place as well as we can. We hope they come back to you safe and well."

Rome Pay Set by Yank Is Cut by Alexander

Gen. H. H. Johnson.

ROME, July 4 (AP).—An order by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson, of Laredo, Tex., military governor of Rome, increasing wages paid to civilians employed by allied armies, has been rescinded by Gen. Harold Alexander, allied commander in Italy, it was learned today.

Officials in the Rome area said allied forces here now are paying civilians less than the German army paid them, and below the scale fixed by the Fascist labor code at the time the allies entered the capital.

Nazis Paid Fascist Scale.

Germans paid the scale set by the Fascists last November. Truck drivers who received 135 lire daily from them are now getting 90 from the allies. Laborers who got 77½ lire are now getting 65. The official exchange rate is 100 lire to the dollar.

Those favoring the increase said that, as there has been no material drop in the cost of living, imposition of the lower wage scale has resulted in extreme hardships for many.

The differences between the commands as to what the wages should be reflects the extremely chaotic monetary situation existing in Rome, and has resulted in sharp controversy in which one officer has asked to be relieved of his post.

Urged 15 Pct. Increase.

He is Lt. Col. Thomas A. Lane, Washington, D. C., former labor leader and department of labor official, who now is chief labor officer of the Rome area. It was on his recommendation that Johnson ordered the increases, which averaged about 15 per cent and would have brought the allied scale about up to that paid formerly by the Germans.

When Alexander's command set aside the order in favor of the lower scale established in southern Italy, Lane asked for a transfer, he said.

One argument put forth against increasing wages was that it would add to the already astronomic inflation in Italy, and drive prices still higher.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, July 4 (AP). — American forces in the Pacific celebrated the Fourth of July by capturing Garapan, capital of the Marianas Islands, sinking, beaching, or burning four Japanese destroyers and a cargo ship, shelling one island in the Bonin group from cruisers, and blasting another with carrier planes.

The latest naval action, announced by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a special bulletin tonight, took place at Iwo and Haha Islands, in the Bonins. Cruisers and destroyers shelled Iwo Island, firing harbor installations and warehouses, while planes from the task force attacked Iwo and Haha, which is just north of Iwo Island. Twenty-five enemy planes were destroyed in air battles, and an undetermined number were destroyed on the ground. The American fleet lost six planes.

Rocket Bombs Employed.

Rocket fire from the American planes was extensively employed on both objectives, the admiral reported.

He said preliminary reports indicated three Japanese destroyers were sunk or beached, and a fourth was left dead in the water and burning; one large cargo ship and one medium oiler were sunk, and several cargo ships were damaged. There was no damage to American warships.

The bulletin did not report where these ships were found. United States carrier planes have destroyed 36 Japanese ships, probably sunk three others, and damaged "50 plus" since June 10.

39 Shot Down Earlier.

Destruction of the 25 Japanese planes increased to 826 the total destroyed from June 10, inaugural of the present western Pacific operation. In addition, 35 enemy planes have been listed as probably destroyed and "37 plus" damaged.

In his regular bulletin issued earlier Adm. Nimitz reported that in another raid on Iwo Island 39 Japanese planes were shot down, 16 others probably were knocked out, and 24 damaged or destroyed on the ground.

Iwo Island is only 755 miles southeast of Tokyo, and 727 miles north of Saipan, where marines and infantry yesterday swept thru the capital, Garapan, and three miles farther to take the town of Tanapag. On the east coast of the island the troops advanced to within four miles of Inacsa point, the northeastern tip of the island.

Village Encircled.

At the center of the shortened battle line crossing the island 27th division troops fought thru mountain ridges and ravines to encircle Atchugau village.

In 18 days the American forces have won seven-eighths of Saipan. They have backed the Japanese

WHO WANTS A PLANE? U. S. HAS 9,000 TO SELL FROM SURPLUS

Washington, D. C., July 4 (AP).—The first trickle of surplus government owned airplanes has begun to flow into the hands of civilians with more than 9,000 still to be sold, the Defense Plant corporation, disclosed today.

Of 11,450 planes available for sale to private individuals and groups by the DPC by authority of a directive order, 2,376 have been sold, Frank Ronan, vice president, said.

Most of the planes are basic, primary and advance trainers, but also included are gliders, fighters, light, heavy, and medium bombers.

An office of price administration ceiling has been established, consisting of the list price when the plane was manufactured less 8 per cent per year for depreciation, plus the cost of modern equipment.

M. P.s Stirred by Delay on Robot Report

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—Members of parliament today were critical when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told them Prime Minister Churchill had postponed his promised statement on German flying bombs until Thursday, "when the government will have more information."

Herbert Williams.

Herbert Williams, a Conservative, asked Eden for assurances that "the spate of misleading information issued by the air ministry—optimistic dope—will be terminated until we have the [Churchill] statement."

Deep Shelters Urged.

Eden said he did not know what Williams meant but it was obvious to others that Williams was referring to official assertions that the answer to robot bombs was ready and that only a few had penetrated inland, while many were shot down.

[An Associated Press dispatch from London quoted the Budapest radio as saying that casualties in England caused by the German rocket bombs were estimated at 80,000 persons. There was no confirmation of this figure from any other source.]

Frank G. Bowles, Laborite, asked if the government had considered the question "of opening deep underground shelters," which Home Secretary Herbert Morrison recently announced were being used for other purposes. Eden said he was unable to go into that subject.

Spain Linked to Robots.

Eden admitted he had heard a report that the flying bomb was developed thru facilities offered by Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain, but said he had no evidence supporting this.

Meanwhile the robot bombs continued to fall in southern England.

Calls for More Yanks to Give Britons a Rest

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—A suggestion that the British government appeal to the United States to send more troops abroad so that British forces with years of overseas service can be given leave today was turned down by Maj. Arthur Henderson, war ministry spokesman, in the house of commons. The suggestion was made by John Dugdale, a Laborite, who raised the subject of soldiers' leave at the end of the day's house session.

"We are sharing the burden of war with our American allies and intend to share it to the full," he said. "But should we bear more than our share?

"Aren't You Willing?"

"American troops come back on leave after far shorter periods of service overseas than ours do. I ask whether it isn't possible to say to the American people, 'We are determined to pull our weight but at the same time aren't you willing for us to shorten the period of service abroad for our troops to something more like your level even if it means fewer British troops serving abroad and more Americans have to serve abroad?'"

Dugdale said he thought that Americans served abroad two years, but Henderson answered that as far as his advisers knew there was no specific period of service for United States army men.

Qualifying Period Cut.

The qualifying period for leave in the British army, Henderson said, has been reduced from seven to five years' overseas service. A number of men with four and half to five years' service have been brought home and since October 26,000 have returned to the United Kingdom from India, the Mediterranean, and other theaters, he added.

Henderson emphasized that there was little prospect of the period of overseas duty being reduced at present, inasmuch as the man power position is likely to become more rather than less difficult when the large number of men sent overseas soon after the outbreak of the war are qualified for leave.

YANKS ADVANCE TO LAST RIDGE ABOVE LA HAYE

Canadians Gain in Caen Sector.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 5 [Wednesday]. — Substantial gains were made yesterday along the entire Normandy front from the west coast of Cherbourg peninsula to Caen.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American 1st army, on a sector extending 20 miles eastward to Carentan, made an overall gain of 2 miles and captured the last ridge overlooking La Haye du Puits, the German west Normandy anchor and six way road junction. The Americans have gained up to 4 miles since Monday's jump-off and opened yesterday's advance with a tremendous artillery barrage.

American troops south of Carentan, who joined the offensive, advanced more than half a mile in a line straightening stroke.

Canadians Capture Town.

Canadian troops, striking in their first major action since mid-June, advanced nearly 2 miles to capture Carpiquet, 3 miles west of Caen, and then fought on to Carpiquet air field. Dispatches from the front said the field already was in Canadian hands, but this was not confirmed at headquarters.

The British south of the Odon river pushed on from one to two miles and took Verson, south of Carpiquet and four miles southwest of Caen. This thrust did not widen the salient south of the Odon, but started another thrust toward Caen itself.

Nazi radio broadcasts described the allied attack as an all-out assault to drive the Germans from the base of the Cherbourg peninsula and open a thrust into the interior of France. The Germans predicted that other allied landings were in the offing.

Most heartening to the allied troops was an improvement in weather which yesterday afternoon brought allied aircraft out in full force.

Americans Win Four Places.

The Americans won four towns, Denneville and St. Remy-des-Landes on the west coast; Abbe de Blanchelande, north of La Haye, and La Poterie, 2½ miles northeast of La Haye, near a trunk road leading into the stronghold.

The most important American advance was in the capture of two high hills 1½ miles north of La Haye from which guns can sweep the roads on all sides of the town. Germans still were resisting fiercely in the valley between the hills.

Headquarters disclosed that St. Jores, road and rail point six miles east of La Haye, had changed hands since the Americans took it on Monday. The Germans again were thrown out yesterday, dispatches from the front said.

There was considerable activity in the center of the Normandy front near St. Lo, where the Germans say the Americans may mount an all out offensive. St. Lo is the hinge of the allied battlefront and could well be the place from which an attack could be launched at the rear of the enemy fighting in the La Haye area.

Tighten Ring on Caen.

To the east the British and Canadian attacks tightened considerably the ring around Caen. There was some question whether the Germans could withdraw from the Caen sector without extremely heavy losses. That the Canadians could make an advance of nearly two miles in territory where the Germans had concentrated their heaviest armor was regarded with satisfaction at headquarters.

British artillery was shelling the small band of Germans holding out in the hangars of the Carpiquet air field. The field, the largest in the Tilly-Caen area, is two miles long and one mile wide. It was constructed by British and French forces in 1940 with concrete, all-weather runways.

Buildings on one side of the field were captured early by the Canadians, but groups of German machine gunners hung on grimly in the hangars and administration buildings, and covered the field with their fire.

Water Obstacles Ahead.

The Americans astride the St. Lo-La Haye highway in many places had many water obstacles to overcome. They face more of these before they can reach the base of the Cherbourg peninsula.

Southward from La Haye the terrain slopes gradually. There are high hills and woods, pockets where resistance may be stiff. But it is in the area as far south as Lessay that they will encounter the largest water obstacles, extending across the peninsula. This is broken by an area about five miles wide not far west of Lessay. In front of this bottleneck is about 12,000 acres of moors which are regarded as good tank country.

The Canadian-British thrusts near Caen were described at headquarters as "two major advances," which would indicate they were drives in divisional strength only—not to be confused with major offensives, which are on a much larger scale.

Thru these strokes the allies now were in a position to attack at the shoulders of an exposed German salient jutting northwest and north of Caen. The German commander, Marshal Rommel, will be forced to keep considerable forces tied up in that exposed salient or disengage at a sacrifice of ground which would give Gen. Montgomery a right arc encompassing two-thirds of the perimeter around Caen.

Nazi Position Difficult.

The British press used big type in reporting the Canadian attack—the first opportunity since D-day to give a salute to the well trained and long waiting Canadian troops for their part in the Normandy invasion.

A senior British staff officer said the over-all progress along the entire Normandy front was "steady and satisfactory." This is why:

The newly won American hold atop the ridges outside of La Haye makes the German position there almost untenable since the enemy is under the direct, observed fire of artillery which can rake supply roads south of the town. At the same time the American flanking movement west of the town along the coast made it apparent that La Haye was doomed.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 4 (AP).—The text of war bulletin No. 58, issued tonight, said:

"Allied forces made two major attacks this morning. In the Caen area our troops, driving southeast astride the railway and main road from Bayeux to Caen, have captured Carpiquet. Fighting is in progress on the air field there.

"Other allied units, moving from the eastern flank of the Odon bridgehead, advanced several miles, capturing Verson and joining with our troops on their left.

"In the base of the Cherbourg peninsula allied forces, moving south, captured the high ground north of La Haye du Puits this morning. The successful assault of this dominating feature followed earlier advances near St. Remy des Landes, Blanchelande, and La Poterie where substantial gains have been made.

Allied Air Force Active.

"Weather continued to interfere with air operations from midnight until noon today but during the entire period our aircraft, taking advantage of favorable intervals, attacked a variety of targets in support of our troops.

"All types of our fighters joined in supporting ground operations in the Caen-Evrecy and Cherbourg peninsula sectors. Fighter bombers made low level attacks on artillery positions, supply dumps, trenches and railways between Coutances and Lessay.

"Troop concentrations and motor transport were successfully attacked behind the enemy lines in both sectors, and concentrations on the railways at Villedieu, Vire, Le Mans and southeast of Argentan were bombed and strafed in spite of poor visibility.

Hit Brest Peninsula.

"Motor convoys, towing guns, were effectively hit near Bethan [south of Alencon] as were railway targets and oil storage tanks in the Brest peninsula. Reports so far received show that 12 of our fighters are missing.

"Heavy day bombers, escorted by fighters, this morning attacked a number of air fields in north and northwest France, bombing by instruments. No enemy aircraft was encountered. Two of our bombers are missing. Escorting fighters also bombed and strafed two Seine bridges and trains near Lille.

"Early this morning light coastal forces intercepted a small enemy convoy to the northeast of St. Malo. Two of the enemy were sunk and damage inflicted on others.

"Unsuccessful attempts were made by a number of enemy E-boats to break into our lines of communication from the eastward during the night. The enemy was finally driven off by light coastal forces after a succession of engagements which lasted thruout the night."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Tuesday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"In Normandy the enemy, supported by strong artillery and tanks, attacked on the western wing of the beachhead yesterday. He was repulsed as a whole and at a few points only did the enemy succeed in penetrating our lines after fierce fighting. On the remaining front the day passed without any special events.

"In Brittany 20 terrorists and 58 enemy parachutists who had bailed out disguised as civilians were killed to the last man in fighting.

"German heavy bombers last night raided enemy ship concentrations off the Normandy coast. Two special landing craft received direct hits. Other hits were observed amongst enemy disembarkations.

"Vessels escorting a German convoy set fire to a British E-boat off the Dutch coast.

"Heavy retaliation fire is directed against London."

STARS, STRIPES PUBLISHES FIRST ISSUE IN FRANCE

IN NORMANDY, France, July 4—(AP).—The Stars and Stripes, daily newspaper of United States forces, published its first issue in France today after its staff stayed up most of the night wrestling with French typesetting machines and presses.

The two page sheet is a forerunner of the four page continental edition to be published six times a week in the same country where Stars and Stripes won journalistic fame in the last war.

Today's edition carried the banner, "Yanks Launch New Attack on Peninsula." The staff writers include Lt. Richard Hodenfield of Glenwood, Ia.

Publish Cherbourg Paper.

CHERBOURG, France, July 4 (AP).—The first newspaper to be printed in liberated France rolled off the press yesterday and news hungry Frenchmen tussled outside the hastily repaired printing plant for the first copies. The paper is a tabloid size, one sheet affair called La Presse Cherbourgeoise. It was published by a Frenchman who was helped by a captain from the army psychological warfare branch, Patrick Dolan of Chicago.

2 U. S. ADMIRALS PERILED ON VISIT TO CHERBOURG

CHERBOURG, France, July 4 (AP).—Rear Admirals Alan G. Kirk and John Wilkes narrowly escaped death in a daring entry into this harbor recently, it was disclosed today.

The American admirals with Comdr. John D. Bulkley, famed PT-boat expert, and other staff officers, approached the harbor entrance in a PT-boat which tied up at a mole. The party then entered a duck [an amphibious craft] for travel across the heavily mined inner harbor.

The American party was unhurt. [The dispatch, from which 10 words were censored, does not disclose the date of the event nor the danger the admirals faced.]

Kirk, commander of the American naval task force in the Normandy invasion, came here with Wilkes to inspect the harbor's facilities and ruins. They toured the port area with Commodore William A. Sullivan of New York City, who was in charge of the salvage.

2 CHICAGOLAND PILOTS BAG 4 GERMAN PLANES

A U. S. FIGHTER BASE, ENGLAND, July 4 (AP).—In a raid by Thunderbolts on a Nazi air field in France today, the fighter pilots bagged 17 Me-109s in 15 minutes.

Lt. George Bostwick of 216½ Washington st., Wausau, Wis., knocked down three Germans during the melee. Lt. K. L. Curtis of 507 Brick st., Valparaiso, Ind., got one.

Bodies of Flyers Found in Missing Fighter Plane

Fresno, Cal., July 4 (AP).—A night fighter plane which had been missing since April 13 has been found near Wawona station, Hammer field officials reported tonight. It contained the bodies of the pilot, 2d Lt. Jack Forrest Marlow of Kewanee, Ill., and his observer.

1,000 GUNS ROAR SALUTE TO 4TH, DEATH TO NAZIS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. FIELD HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 4.—With Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley firing one of the big guns himself, the American army in France observed Independence day this noon with a concentrated barrage against the Germans from every field gun and tank destroyer.

It was the biggest concentration ever laid down by American field artillery at one time and it was not done just as a patriotic show. Every gun which fired had a good target, picked by forward observers.

Fire More than 1,000 Guns.

Hundreds and hundreds of guns took part. Each fired one shell. Military security prevents revealing the exact number, but more than 1,000 guns fired on German troop concentrations, gun batteries and strong points.

On one divisional front veteran American artillery men put on their official 48 gun Fourth of July salute with ammunition saved for weeks just for this occasion. But their blast was lost in the cacophony of noise rolling over Normandy's orchards from near Barneville on the Atlantic coast down beyond Caumont.

The substitution of big shells and field guns for the usual fireworks in the traditional celebration of our independence found every soldier from the commanding general on down getting a schoolboy "kick" out of the big shoot.

Bradley Fires a "Long Tom."

At one of the big 155 mm. "Long Tom" rifles, Gen. Bradley grasped the lanyard, knelt on one knee, and jerked the firing cord as the clock ticked 12 o'clock. All along the front every other gun fired simultaneously.

I watched the celebration from the rear of a new Long Tom battery commanded by Capt. William E. McKinzie, Filley, Neb., and the gun of Sgt. Joseph Buckley, Alliance, O. Since the unit had fired its first mission yesterday Buckley's gun had shot 60 rounds.

McKinzie was not aware the whole 1st army would fire a Fourth of July salute until a few minutes before 12 when his executive officer, Lt. Virgil Donze of El Paso, Ill., received the orders from headquarters.

Another Illinoisan in Crew.

"Firing mission" sang out Donze over the telephones to his four guns and each crewman raced to his position, ready to start work. They were supporting the American attack south toward La Haye and their target was an infantry concentration.

Pvt. Michael G. Mertens of Taylorville, Ill., helped prepare the powder charges. Pvt. Randall Jones of St. Louis, Mo., carried a powder charge, and Pvt. Paul Martin of Kenton, O., put it into the chamber to send the "whispering death," as the Germans call these big shells, on its way.

There was a blast of flame, the shell whistled off on its mission, and Pvt. Martens remarked: "This is the first time the Fourth of July fireworks haven't cost me anything."

British Pork Sausages Get More Meat July 9

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—The ministry of food announced today that the meat content of pork sausages will be increased from 35½ to 50 per cent July 9. Fish and meat content of fish and meat pastes will be increased to 70 and 55 per cent, respectively; the ministry said.

STIMSON VISITS ROME; GREETED BY GEN. CLARK

ROME, Italy, July 4 (AP).—Wearing a tropical helmet and swinging a cane, Secretary of War Stimson entered Rome today aboard the first train to run into the Italian capital since it fell to the allies. He was greeted at a colorful ceremony by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson, allied commander of Rome, and Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, 5th army commander.

Stimson's arrival was a double ceremony for, on the next track, came another American Diesel engine pulling the first trainload of coal to move into Rome since long before the city's fall.

Among the officers who arrived with the secretary was Brig. Gen. Carl G. Gray Jr., of Chicago, and St. Paul, Minn., director of the army railway service, who supervised rehabilitation of the rail line into Rome. The journey from Naples was broken at Cassino where Stimson made a brief tour of the battle ruins in a jeep.

Unless his schedule is amended Stimson will confer with Pope Pius tomorrow.

7½ LB. PATRIOT IS NEW ARRIVAL ON BEACHHEAD

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS NEAR LA HAYE DU PUITS, France, July 4—(AP).—The beachhead battle ground has a new arrival—a 7½ pound patriot born almost in the front lines.

Two nights ago a Frenchman hurried out of a little farmhouse and told Maj. Daniel McIlvoy, Springfield, Ky., his wife was having her child and would the physician deliver the baby? In the rays of a flashlight, McIlvoy delivered the child.

"It was a boy," grinned McIlvoy, "and they named him Daniel in my honor."

CHERBOURG GETS WATER 3 DAYS AFTER NAZIS GO

CHERBOURG, France, July 4 (AP). Coöperation between allied civil affairs officers and local officials appeared to be going smoothly today, one week after American arms freed this port from four years of Nazi occupation.

Two big water mains were broken but water was restored to the greater part of the city three days after the Germans were driven out. The food situation was never desperate, because Cherbourg is in a farming country.

Lt. Col. Frank L. Howley, Drexel Hill, Pa., commanding officer of the 1st European affairs unit, said it was hoped to get fishing boats operating just as soon as the water is cleared of mines. Fuel supplies still are tight, with the civil affairs in coöperation with the chamber of commerce allocating amounts on a priority basis.

Communications and telephones are not functioning. Street car lines still are unrepaired. The populace still is trickling back slowly, with about half of the approximately 30,000 normal number still absent.

YANKS 15 MILES FROM LIVORNO IN NEW ADVANCE

Allies Gain Along Whole Line in Italy.

ROME, July 4 (AP).—Allied armies registered gains of from four to more than eight miles along the entire 165 mile Italian front today, overcoming bitter resistance of German suicide units in some sectors.

The Nazis offered particularly fierce opposition along the west coast, where an American infantry combat team stabbed northward from captured Cecina to within 15 miles of Livorno [Leghorn] and within 23 miles of the edge of Pisa.

At points the Yanks were reported within artillery range of the enemy's Gothic line defenses, running from the Pisa area across the peninsula to Rimini on the Adriatic sea.

Capture Magione.

The 8th army mopped up the entire area immediately north of Lake Trasimeno, with some Nazi units resisting "to the last man and the last round," an allied spokesman said. Magione, on the east side of the lake, was captured.

In advancing to within eight miles of the inland communications center of Arezzo, on a main highway to Florence, British and other 8th army troops inflicted upon the Germans what were officially announced as the heaviest losses since the Hitler line was broken. It was in this immediate area than Hannibal annihilated a trapped Roman army of 15,000 men more than 2,100 years ago.

From historic Siena, occupied early yesterday almost without a fight, French colonial infantry and American armored units pushed on toward Florence, 31 airline miles away, after pausing only long enough to raise their flags over the city. Only a small garrison was left in Siena.

Yanks Capture 26,500.

Headquarters announced that Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's 5th army, which includes Americans and French colonials, captured 26,500 prisoners from the opening of the offensive May 11 to July 1.

For the first time in recent weeks, the Americans have again come under fire from enemy six-barreled rocket mortars. This is an indication, according to a headquarters spokesman, that they are coming within range of prepared Nazi positions.

Big American guns caught a mass of enemy vehicles, guns and personnel at a point on the coastal highway between Cecina and Livorno yesterday and laid down a concentrated fire which was officially reported to have caused "heavy destruction and slaughter."

Brisk fighting was reported in the vicinity of Osimo, 14 miles south of the port of Ancona on the Adriatic, with enemy losses mounting despite favorable defense positions.

CHUTE FAILURE BLAMED IN NAVY FLYER'S DEATH

Ensign Charles F. McManus, Milton, Mass., a member of the eight man crew of a twin-engined navy plane which crash landed Monday on a farm eight miles west of Troy, Kendall county, lost his life when his parachute failed to open. Six members of the crew parachuted to safety and the pilot stayed with his ship. He received only a cut on his forehead.

The pilot informed Glenview naval air station officers that his starboard engine failed first and then the port engine. He then ordered the crew to abandon ship.

A short time after the pilot skidded the big plane across a corn field and thru a fence on the farm of Alfred Heap it caught fire and burned. The six crew members, who landed within a radius of two miles, were picked up by plane and taken to the Glenview station.

MILLIONS FLOCK TO BEACHES AND PARKS ON JULY 4

Safe, Sane Holiday Is Observed.

Chicago yesterday observed the 168th anniversary of this country's declaration of independence from Great Britain with celebrations characterized mainly by the lack of exploding fireworks and the motoring diversions of a peace time Fourth of July.

With firecrackers as scarce as gold nuggets, and nearly as valuable, Chicagoans took to heart the annual pleas for a "safe and sane" celebration and in general spent the day at home or jammed into one of the city's parks or beaches. Up to midnight no fatalities resulting from observance of the holiday had been reported.

Effects of gasoline rationing could be observed in the absence of large numbers of automobiles on city streets and county highways. The Chicago Motor club reported that traffic in the outlying districts was the lightest in 25 years and that local travel in the city was only slightly heavier than a normal day.

Million at Parks, Beaches.

Extra cars and extra men, however, were needed to handle the tremendous crowds attempting to travel to the lake front on street cars, buses and elevated lines.

All the city's beaches and parks were crowded to capacity. Park board officials estimated that nearly a million persons spent the day acquiring a sunburn at the beaches, parks and swimming pools.

Fred Springer, manager of the North av. beach, reported that a crowd of some 50,000 persons brought a Coney Island atmosphere to his beach. By 2 p. m., he said, 46 lost children had been refound.

A crowd estimated at 80,000 attended the city's main celebration at Soldiers' field where the American Legion held its 10th annual show.

Robert Bean, assistant director of the Brookfield zoo, said 30,006 persons visited the zoo, the largest attendance in three years.

More than 30,000 persons attended a fireworks display in Dyche stadium, Evanston, sponsored by the North Evanston Fourth of July association.

Report Several Casualties.

Several holiday casualties were reported. Mrs. Grace Richardson, 42, of 644 Michigan av., Highland Park, suffered a skull fracture when struck on the head by a baseball bat that slipped from the hands of a player during a game at an American Legion celebration at Sunset rd. and Central av., Highland Park. She was taken to the Highland Park hospital.

Eugene Tempe, 36, of 5221 Oleander av., was seriously injured while visiting friends in Morton Grove last night when a skyrocket struck him in the chin and bounced from his chest to the back of Mrs. Tempe. Six stitches were required to close Tempe's wound.

Edward J. Barrett Jr., 2, of 2005 Washington st., Wilmette, the son of an insulating contractor, was revived by volunteer firemen after he had been found unconscious in a lily pond on the estate of relatives on route 176, three miles west of Mundelein, Lake county.

Kelly to Wed

Pvt. Edward Przybyszewski (Kelly), and his fiancee, Miss Melaine Nefeldt, 20.

The name of Kelly, which fellow marines at San Diego, Cal., have pinned on Pvt. Edward Przybyszewski, 21, of 5018 Henderson st., isn't the first nickname which he has had, his parents, Peter and Helen Przybyszewski, said here yesterday. They had read a dispatch relating that a mail clerk had solved the problem of pronouncing the soldier's name by calling him Kelly.

"Kelly is a good name," his parents said, "but the one most of his friends use is a little closer to his own. It's Prebe."

Przybyszewski enlisted in the marine corps on the day before the Pearl Harbor attack and later served 18 months in the Southwest Pacific. He once was grazed by a bullet. He later returned to this country for an operation and, after recuperating at San Diego, he will come here to marry Miss Melaine Nefeldt, 20, of 3031 N. Sawyer av.

BOMBS RIP NAZI AIR, RAIL AND OIL KEYS IN 2 LANDS

LONDON, July 4—(AP).—In a great Fourth of July resurgence of air assaults, nearly 5,000 allied bombers and fighters ranged over France, blasting scores of targets in close support of the new American and British-Canadian drives in Normandy.

Late in the evening American Marauders headed toward the Pas-de-Calais rocket bomb area, and R. A. F. night raiders struck at targets in France.

In addition to thousands of individual attacks by fighters and fighter-bombers, both American and British heavy bomber fleets were out.

Up to 500 American heavyweights from Italy bombed an oil refinery at Brasov, and a bridge and railroad shops at Pitesti, Romania.

U. S. Raids Enter 3d Year.

An equal number of Fortresses and Liberators from Britain celebrated the second anniversary of the first American bombing of Europe by hitting German air bases in northern France.

"I celebrated my first mission, my birthday and the Fourth of July today," said Lt. Ralph E. Gregory Jr. of Winnetka, Ill., a co-pilot.

The multiple actions today were in sharp contrast to July 4, 1942, when 12 Douglas A-20 light bombers—six American and six British—bombed the Rouen railroad yards in the United States army air force's first European operation. A month later came the first Flying Fortress attack.

Hit Robot Bomb Bases.

R. A. F. Lancasters and Halifaxes attacked the flying bomb bases on the French coast.

Some 200 American fighters, operating just ahead of the American ground forces pushing south from the Cherbourg peninsula, ripped enemy troops, gun positions, trenches, supply dumps, and rail lines. The attacks extended from the front line area 50 miles south to Vire, where the east-west railway was cut.

R. A. F. fighters gave similar support to the British-Canadian drives on Caen. German troops concentrations just south of that battered city were bombed and strafed. A highway convoy moving toward the front was intercepted near Alencon, 50 miles south of the battlefield, and other air attacks extended to Le Mans, 75 miles south, where a railroad was blasted.

Strike Paris and Lille.

Other railroads as far away as Paris and Lille, almost on the Belgian border, also were attacked.

In the campaign against Germany's critical oil supply, R. A. F. Spitfires blasted a big oil storage plant on the Brest peninsula.

First reports showed 15 allied planes, including two heavy bombers, lost, against 24 German planes shot down.

NATIVES PUT ON BIG 4TH FETE IN MARSHALL ISLES

Freed by U.S., Hail Its Independence.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, July 4 (AP).—Seven hundred Marshallese natives honored American Independence day in a celebration on Majuro atoll for which they had spent months of painstaking preparation.

The festival included a baseball game between American servicemen and a native team.

A civil affairs officer explained that King Laingien, Majuro atoll chief, told American officers many weeks ago that the islanders wanted to commemorate "big American day."

Yanks Give Gifts to Natives.

"It was about the most sincere, honest gesture we had ever seen," the officer said.

Officers urged the natives to dispense with their custom of making gifts for the Americans, but the chief insisted. A solution was reached in having the marines and bluejackets, who were the natives' guests, exchange gifts with the Marshallese.

Majuro atoll was occupied by Americans early in the Marshall Islands fighting last February. The Marshalls had been under Japanese control since shortly after World War I.

Eden Addresses Americans.

LONDON, July 4 (AP).—The beginning of the liberation of Europe is visible, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told a Fourth of July luncheon of the American Society of London.

The war is teaching "the lesson not only of independence, but the interdependence of peoples," Eden declared, adding: "There is no hope for the future of mankind unless we accept that independence, the right to manage our own affairs which we of the united nations have all at some stage or another so hardly won. It is but the first step toward a voluntary association of free peoples united for the common good."

Molotov at Luncheon.

MOSCOW, July 4 (AP).—Russian Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was a guest of United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman today at an Independence day luncheon at the American embassy. At an all-day outing at the embassy's country house a softball game and Russian beer were the principal features.

RUSSIANS TAKE POLOTSK; DRIVE 37 MORE MILES

Thousands of Aircraft Pound Germans.

LONDON, July 5 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Russian troops completed the capture of Polotsk in White Russia yesterday after hours of hand to hand fighting while advance units drove 37 miles westward, pointing a spearhead directly at the ancient Polish city of Wilno [Vilna], Moscow said today.

With German defenses crumbling all along the 300 mile front, the vanguard of Gen. Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic army burst thru the sparsely settled lake country southwest of Polotsk and occupied the railway station of Konstantinov, 48 miles east of Wilno.

Seize 300 Towns.

In this spreading offensive Bagramian's army also captured more than 300 other places, one of which, the district center of Myeri, was within 10 miles of the Latvian border. Altogether 900 places were captured yesterday.

Massed Russian infantry, tanks, and artillery, advancing under cover of thousands of warplanes, were steadily pushing the reeling Nazis back on a front 300 miles wide.

In an order of the day Stalin announced the capture of Polotsk and identified it as "a powerful fortified area covering the route to Dougavpils" [Dvinsk], southeast Latvian city on the route to Riga. Last reported Russian positions were about 40 miles southeast of Dougavpils and more than 60 miles beyond Polotsk.

Farther south, the Russians were swiftly exploiting the fall of Minsk, which removed the last major obstacle on the shortest route from Russia to Germany.

The Vichy radio said the Russians had reached the area of Wilno in two places, and Moscow reports confirmed that the chief weight of their drive was toward Wilno, halfway along the route to East Prussia. Wilno was bombed Monday night.

Say Reds Move Like Avalanche.

The official army paper Red Star said: "The Red army is moving toward the German frontier like an avalanche. Our offensive now is moving faster than ever. White Russia is the scene of a debacle unprecedented in history."

Observers in both Moscow and London reckoned that at the present rate of advance, the Russians should be within shooting distance of East Prussia within a week.

First objective of the Russian campaign for Poland, now rapidly taking shape, was apparently to cut the railroad between Warsaw and Grodno, which would seriously affect the supply, maintenance and retreat of the German 16th and 18th armies in the north.

The 16th army was believed likely to fall back to the Dvina river between Riga and Daugavpils, while the 18th might retire to Tallinn, possibly to try a sea evacuation to East Prussia.

Capture Nazi General.

In clearing out pockets around Bobruisk, soviet forces captured 60 German officers including Lt. Gen. Luetzow, commander of the 35th army corps. This raised to 22 the number of German general officers killed or captured in the last three weeks in Russia and France.

Northwest of Minsk the 3rd White Russian army of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky joined forces with the 1st Baltic army in sweeping into Wilejka province.

The 1st White Russian army of Marshal Konstantin H. Rokosovsky drove its forward wedge to within 25 miles of Baranowicze [Baranovichi] on the southwest, capturing the town of Kletsk in a 14 mile advance. This closed more tightly a semi-circular front around the big railway junction in old Poland.

WATCH AND RING STOLEN.

Burglars who entered his home stole a watch and a ring valued at $300, George Holme, 6316 S. Central av., reported to police yesterday.

Bares Stalin Scheme to Use Poles as Buffer in Next War

Springfield, Mass., July 4 (AP).—The expressed desire of Dictator Stalin for a strong, independent, and democratic Poland, friendly with Russia, was made public today by the Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, pastor of Our Lady of the Rosary church, whose recent conference with Stalin aroused world-wide controversy.

The priest, suspended briefly after his return from Russia for his unauthorized departure from his parish, released for publication a written statement given him by Andrzej Witos, leader of the Polish Peasant parties.

Statement Quotes Stalin.

The Witos statement was based on declarations made by Stalin at a conference with leaders of the Polish army in the Kremlin at Moscow last March 15. It quoted Stalin as saying:

"'We will help you to organize the Polish army and we will not hesitate to supply you with the best equipment. Our army will liberate the Polish people from Hitlerism and Fascism.

"'We will not do this for the sake of appearances or because we are brother Slavs, but because sound political judgment shows that as neighbors we are necessary one to another.

"Cannot Destroy Germans."

"'You cannot destroy the Germans so that they will not rise again. A few years after this war there will again be danger of invasion by them. For this reason it is to our mutual interest to have a strong Poland, a Poland that could check Germany. All military inroads into Poland must be liquidated.

"'All territories once Polish and taken by the Germans must return to Poland.

"'We do not want a communistic or soviet Poland. We have no intention of meddling with the internal affairs or form of government of Poland. Let the people decide and we will help rebuild a strong, independent, democratic Poland which will be friendly toward us."

Sen. Holman to Marry Widow of Sen. Lundeen

Minneapolis, Minn., July 4 (AP).—Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of the late United States senator from Minnesota, and United States Sen. Holman [R., Ore.], will be married tomorrow afternoon at the county court house here. Sen. Lundeen was killed in the crash of an airplane Aug. 31, 1940. Holman, in the United States senate since 1938, is a 66 year old widower.

RUSSIANS LET ROMANIANS RUN OCCUPIED AREAS

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY.

WITH THE RED ARMY IN ROMANIA, July 4 (AP).—It can now be said with complete conviction that the Russians in the initial venture of this war beyond their borders have adopted a strict attitude of nonintervention in local affairs.

Three months after the Red army entered Romania allied correspondents have been permitted to come to the northern corner of the country, held by the Russians, for an investigation of the occupation. We have been given the liberty to talk with any one and to see anything we please.

It was the unanimous consensus of American, British, and Chinese observers that the Russians are not "interfering" in any way with the political, economic or social life of Romania.

German propaganda has been frightening small nations of eastern Europe by reviving the old bolshevik bogey. It worked to such an extent that many Romanians fled before the arrival of the Red army. An investigation showed that such fears were false.

Keeping Order, Sole Purpose.

The Russian occupation is administered by military commandants whose sole preoccupation is the maintenance of order, security and health for their troops. They are not specially selected or trained, and bear no resemblance to AMG officers. They are designated by army commanders to serve as commandants temporarily while billeted in towns, and then they move on with their units. Local officials are left to carry on their usual functions.

Local laws, including those with anti-Semitic provisions, are left unchanged, pending later change by the people themselves. This attitude is applied even to the Romanian act outlawing the Communist party, which remains on the books.

Carry Out Molotov's Order.

The Russian attitude is based on Commissar of Foreign Affairs Molotov's statement on April 2 that the soviet government "does not pursue the aim of acquiring any part of Romanian territory or altering the existing social system in Romania." Copies of this statement, written in Romanian, are posted in all the occupied territory.

The most drastic measure taken has been the imposition of a curfew from 9 p. m. to 5 a. m., and a ban on public meetings.

FINE CANADIAN WHO GIVES CASH TO STRANGERS

LEVIS, Que., July 4 (AP).—A fine of $25 and $200 costs were levied today for drunkenness and assault on a man identified by Police Chief J. Guay as Harry Falconer McLean, Merrickville, Ont., construction millionaire who recently gained wide publicity by throwing hundreds of dollars from a Windsor, Ont., hotel window. McLean spent a night in jail before he appeared before Recorder Valmore De Billy.

One hundred dollars of the costs was awarded to Provincial Detective Joseph Cote who, police said, was attacked by McLean in a restaurant near the Quebec ferry.

McLean, whose distribution of money to strangers has run into thousands of dollars, had 75 cents in his pockets when arrested last night, said Chief Guay. After today's hearing, McLean resumed a trip to the Gaspe peninsula.

I'm NOT Dead, It's a Lie by My Foes, Says Gigli

ROME, July 4 (AP).—Benjamin Gigli, former Metropolitan Opera singer, today said reports of his death were "malicious slander" spread by his enemies. "They are jealous of me," Gigli said. "They are always saying things about me. First that I am a Fascist. Now that I am dead."

REVEAL MISSING CHICAGO FLYER DIED IN ACTION

Staff Sgt. Edmund J. Blais, 22, a tail gunner on a Flying Fortress who previously was reported missing since Oct. 9, was killed in action, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Blais, 523 W. 78th st., were notified yesterday by the war department. After being notified on Oct. 26 that the flyer was missing, his father asked for details and was told on May 20 that his son had been shot down by enemy planes over northern Germany.

Sgt. Blais, who attended Calumet High scool, was managing a chain of restaurants in Buffalo, N. Y., until he entered the air forces 15 months ago. He had been stationed in England three months and was on his 11th mission when he was shot down.

He held the air medal with an oak leaf cluster. A sister, Mrs. Kenneth Moseley, wife of an army air forces lieutenant piloting a fighter plane in India, also survives.

FIND 4 KILLED, 30 INJURED IN WRECK OF 'CHIEF'

12 Cars Pile Up on Track in Arizona.

Flagstaff, Ariz., July 4 (AP).—The Santa Fe Chief, speeding 158 passengers toward the west coast, eased over a mountain hump, rounded a slight curve, and headed into a long straightaway last night, then suddenly piled up in a spectacular wreck.

Company officials said four persons, the fireman, and three passengers, were killed and more than 30 injured, some of them critically. Traffic on both tracks was tied up more than 12 hours until a temporary track was built around the wreckage.

The engine, one of the line's largest mountain type, and 12 of the extra fare train's 14 cars left the track.

The four mail and express cars catapulted over the locomotive, which toppled crosswise on the track. The fifth, a sleeper, smashed into the wreckage with such force it was necessary to cut one end away with acetylene torches to reach the dead and injured.

Film Executive Killed.

One of the dead was identified by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Hollywood, Cal., as J. S. McLeod of New York City, head of all M. G. M. film exchanges in the nation.

The others killed were John H. Edwards, fireman, of Winslow Ariz.; H. H. Helper of Los Angeles, Cal., manager of Linde Air Products Co., and Mrs. Ann Brandys of 934 Merrill av., Hammond, Ind.

With Indians tending bonfires to provide light for rescue efforts, army and naval personnel aboard the train took charge. Some of these were doctors. Other physicians, nurses, and ambulances were sent to the scene from Williams, Winslow, Flagstaff, and the government hospital at the Navajo ordnance depot at Bellemont.

In spite of calm direction from the military, Deputy Sheriff L. L. Shanks, one of the first to reach the scene, said most of the passengers, suddenly awakened, milled about in confusion.

Pullman Conductor John M. Khun of Chicago was commended by passengers for his cool headed direction of rescue work.

Buckled up with Screech.

Victor F. Dunsmore, an executive of the Los Angeles Herald and-Express, telephoned his office that he was walking thru a car when the luxury train "buckled up with a horrible screech."

"Steam from the wrecked locomotive shrieked out and seemed to cover the whole train," he said. "Some of the passengers, who were thrown from the train, were burned."

Dunsmore said there were screams and cries for help. Uninjured passengers began pulling others from the wreckage.

F. L. Tabor, 64, conductor, was badly shaken, but he walked two and one-half miles to the siding at Maine to dispatch a call for help.

The wreck occurred at 11:37 p. m., M. W. T. [12:37 a. m. Chicago time], about 20 miles west of here. The train left Chicago at 12:01 Sunday and was due at Los Angeles at 1:50 p. m. [Chicago time] today.

Railroad officials who came here from Winslow said it was a miracle no more were killed. They said this probably was due to the fact that the streamliner carried the latest equipment.

The baggage car was split open. It contained one corpse in transit which added to the confusion of identifying the dead.

Santa Fe officials said the track where the wreck occurred was of the heaviest type steel, and had been in service since May 30. They said trainmen were instructed to limit their speed at that point to 55 miles an hour.

Approximately 600 yards of track were torn up by the wreck.

Rails Curled Back.

Heavy steel rails were curled back like ribbons over the locomotive. One of these pierced the tender and sent oil flowing into the Pullman which smashed against it. There was no fire.

The three cars immediately back of the smashed sleeper turned crosswise of the track and the middle one overturned. The next group of four remained upright and zigzagged along the track.

At the Bellemont depot, where 19 of the injured were hospitalized, some 350 passengers from other trains were fed during the day. A special train was made up at Flagstaff for the convenience of the uninjured.

Injured persons from Chicagoland who were hospitalized included:

Mrs. Lorraine Van Haverbek (also given as Van Hasderbach), 10525 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich., condition serious.

Mrs. Frances Lasley, 700 N. Oakwood, Lake Forest, Ill., about 70, condition critical. Possible back fracture.

Mrs. Thomas J. Welch, 3705 W. 35th st., Gary, Ind., possible fracture right arm. [Tommy Welch, same address, uninjured.]

Alex M. Caplan, 18442 Murland av., Detroit, injured right leg.

E. Jones, Negro porter, 3701 Indiana av., Chicago, head lacerations and bruises.

Charles West, Negro porter, 8202 Prairie av., Chicago, shoulder injury.

Mrs. Marjorie Hungerford, 23, 3518 Pine Grove st., Chicago, back injury.

Frank Hansen, 630 Heath st., Lafayette, Ind., bruises right arm and shoulder.

Mrs. P. B. Haythorne, 10616 Hoyne av., Chicago, body bruises.

Lt. Marvin E. Deall, Oakland City, Ind., back injury, not serious.

GROCER'S WIFE KILLED.

Mrs. Ann Brandys, 33, of 934 Merrill av., Hammond, Ind., killed in the Santa Fe wreck at Flagstaff, Ariz., was on her way to California for a five weeks' vacation with a friend, Miss Elizabeth Morincy, also of Hammond. She operated a beauty shop in her home. She is survived by her husband, Frank, who is part owner of a food store in Hammond, and two sons, Russell, 10, and Robert, 5.

Mrs. Lasley, one of the injured, is the mother of Mrs. B. Botford Young, of 944 N. Sheridan rd., Lake Forest, and the widow of Montgomery L. Lasley, a retired refrigerator dealer in Michigan. Mrs. Lasley was returning to the west coast with her sister, Mrs. Frederic Matson, of Los Angeles, who suffered a fractured hip.

Wife of a Corporal.

Mrs. Marjorie Hungerford, 23, another of the injured, was on her way to visit her husband, George B., an army corporal stationed at a prisoner of war camp near Phoenix, Ariz. She had left her son, Daniel, 15 months old, at home.

Mrs. P. B. Haythorne visited a son, Capt. Robert E. Haythorne, who is stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., at Kansas City, Mo., on Sunday and was on her way to visit another son, Percy A., of Los Angeles, a research engineer for the Lockheed Aircraft corporation. Her husband, superintendent of transportation for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, said he received word she had resumed her journey after the wreck.

Arthur W. Crawford, general manager of the Chicago Tribune-New York Syndicate, Inc., a passenger of the Chief, was not injured, and a rescue party released him from his compartment by sawing and hammering out the door. Crawford, whose home is in New York, was on a business trip to Los Angeles.

TOUGHER GOING IN PACIFIC SEEN BY ADM. BARBEY

ALLIED HDQ., Australia, July 4 (AP).—Rear Adm. Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the 7th amphibious force, said today the recent heavy Japanese air losses in the Marianas area would greatly restrict the use of the Japanese fleet.

"I don't believe we could suffer such losses as Japan has suffered recently without being greatly embarrassed," said Barbey. "And our replacement capacity is certainly much greater than the enemy's."

Barbey, just returned to his command from conferences in the United States, predicted that "the going in the Pacific will be harder and harder from now on as we near Japan and have to conquer islands completely." He cited the tough battle on Saipan as an example of what can be expected in the Pacific.

WICHITA RAISES FUND TO REPAY COOS BAY CREW

Wichita, Kas., July 4 [Special].—Wichita business men were disclosed today to have made up a fund of $412 to reimburse the crew of the seaplane tender Coos Bay, who contributed that sum from their pay two weeks ago to "buy off money hungry strikers."

The money was collected here by J. Wirth Sargent, attorney, and sent to Lt. W. F. James, executive officer of the Coos Bay. In an accompanying letter, Sargent congratulated the crew for "calling the attention of the public to the unpatriotic strikers."

Among those who contributed $10 each to the fund were W. D. Jochems, former Kansas Supreme court judge; A. W. McCabe, president of the Fourth National bank; F. L. Jehle, president of the Globe Refining company, a number of oil producers, and other well to do business men.

TAVERN KEEPER ROBBED.

Alex Chmura, 3254 N. Ridgway av., was robbed of $40 by four young men in his tavern at 2323 Elston av., he told police yesterday.

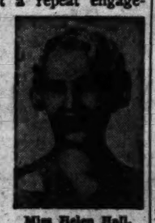
HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE HOSTESSES

Telling your hostess you had a good time is the least you can do. But if you want a repeat engagement, let Miss Helen Hall at the Field Bldg. Book Shop help you out. She has a most unusual assortment of clever, original cards to say "thanks for your hospitality" — to fit every situation and every hostess.



Miss Helen Hall.

And what about the men in service? Maybe you can't write as often as you'd like to, but they'll appreciate an "in-between" card that says they're still riding high in your thoughts. Miss Hall has some you'll love—and so will they.

Birthday greetings, for ages one to a hundred; anniversary congratulations; cheer-ups for convalescents; cards to accompany gifts; to say "why don't you write" so expertly you're sure to get a reply. Don't hunt in vain — Miss Hall can always find the right greeting for every occasion and every mood.

You will find, too, a most complete stock of books. The rental library is filled with best sellers—several copies each of outstanding titles; a nice collection of children's books; and all the latest fiction and non-fiction.

Miss Hall particularly recommends Paul Corey's "Buy an Acre" ($2.00) to all those people who have the inner urge to own a piece of land. This cleverly written book tells you where to look for it, how to buy it, how to build your house, what to raise—even how to get along with your country neighbors.

Or if you're looking for vacation reading, Miss Hall will gladly suggest something along the line of your own interests. This is the friendly, co-operative service you will find in all the Handy Book & Gift Shops at these convenient locations: Field Bldg.; Palmer House; Hyde Park (1457 E. MANY CITIZENS IN U. S. PUT ON 'TRIAL' BY ARMY

Say They Are Examined on Pre-War Views.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Testimony of lawyers representing the Hawaiian Bar association, who denounced army provost courts which have taken over the functions of civil courts in Hawaii since Pearl Harbor, focused attention yesterday on similar activities by the army in the United States itself.

Hundreds of American citizens in the United States have been subjected to much the same treatment that the Hawaiians have suffered. Scores have been subjected to secret army inquisitions, have been judged without trial or jury and have been compelled to move because boards or "courts" composed of army officers held them "dangerous" and ordered them out of certain areas.

Unable to Learn Charges.

In many cases no specific charges ever were made against these civilians and often they tried in vain to discover the cause.

One of the first disclosures that a board of army officers was delving into the private lives of civilians came from Rep. Fish [R., N. Y.], who revealed in the house at Washington, D. C., on March 19, 1943, that the group was sitting at Governors Island, N. Y.

Fish charged that this board was summoning men and women civilians for questioning on subjects outside military jurisdiction. Fish said the civilians were informed that the board was attempting to determine whether they were "qualified" to live within 300 miles of Governors Island, a military establishment.

Sounded on Pre-war Views.

He said the questions indicated that the qualifications were determined by the persons' interventionist or noninterventionist views before the war began.

Those who complained to Fish were American born citizens. They told him, he said, they were denied counsel, were not permitted to question the board, and at no time were any charges against them made known.

On April 3, 1943, Mrs. Ida Mae Cooper, 65, who was born in Kenny, Ill., and whose ancestors came to America in the 19th century, told of being summoned in January before the Governors Island military board. At the hearing, conducted by four colonels, two majors, and a sergeant, Mrs. Cooper said, she was called upon to explain her pre-war isolationist views, her hatred for communism, and her association with America First leaders. She said she was questioned for five and a half hours.

A Sample of Questions.

Here are some of the questions Mrs. Cooper said were read to her, with her replies:

Q.—Do you think President Roosevelt is a Communist? A.—No.

Q.—You don't like Mrs. Roosevelt, do you? A.—I do not.

Q.—Do you think Vice President Wallace is a Communist? A.—I do.

Q.—You are opposed to communism, aren't you? A.—Unalterably, and I wouldn't change my views of communism even if you stood me up against that wall and ordered me shot.

Lend-Lease Bill Mentioned.

Mrs. Cooper said she was questioned about her affiliation with the America First, Paul Reveres, Allied Patriots, and other organizations. She said she testified she worked with these and other organizations but never belonged to any of them. She then was asked, she said, whether she had opposed the lend-lease bill by working against it in Washington.

The military subpena served on Mrs. Cooper informed her she might be accompanied before the board by an adviser, but that this adviser would not be permitted to examine witnesses. She was also informed she might refuse to answer any question.

Other New Yorkers who were revealed to have been before the Governors Island board after it had been sitting for more than three months were John G. Juenemann, a writer, and Lawrence Dennis, lecturer and author of "The Coming American Fascism," and other works.

Called Unconstitutional.

Arthur Garfield Hays, general counsel for the American Civil Liberties union, appeared at the hearings with Dennis, and later denounced the army board as "unconstitutional." Dennis is now on trial in Washington, D. C., with Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago and 28 others. This case is before the federal court of the District of Columbia and the charge is that the defendants conspired to overthrow the United States government and set up a Nazi regime in this country.

Dennis and Juenemann both were questioned about their writings. Juenemann said he also was asked about a magazine cartoon in which he depicted President Roosevelt "digging the grave of democracy."

A case in which the right of an army court to order a person from a military area was challenged by the federal court is that of Mrs. Olga Schueller, 53, of Philadelphia, Pa., a naturalized citizen of German birth.

Appeal Reveals Order.

That Mrs. Schueller had been ordered banished from the area by Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, head of the eastern defense command, as being "a potentially dangerous person to the national defense," was disclosed in June, 1943, when the case came on appeal before United States District Judge J. Cullen Ganey. Atty. C. W. Conard argued that "any one banished by 'military necessity' has a right to a trial in open court to determine whether the evidence justifies the banishment."

Mrs. Schueller, who has a son in the navy, testified she has lived in this country for 35 years. She said she was summoned before the military board in the Philadelphia customs house Dec. 23, 1942, and asked to show cause why she should not be excluded from the eastern command.

She said she was not informed of any charges against her, but was questioned concerning her membership in the ladies' auxiliary of the Bavarian Charity society and her connection with the German-American federation, of which she was third vice president.

Given 10 Days to Leave.

"I heard nothing more until April 26," she continued. "Then I got a letter giving me 10 days to close up my business and get out of town.

"They called me before the board again and showed me a map on which they had certain places marked off where I could go. I said I had done nothing wrong and didn't want to go away. They insisted, and I finally said the only place I wanted to go was Chicago.

"Then they gave me a railroad ticket and $40 and said I must be gone by midnight May 6."

Court Upsets Order.

Judge Ganey on Aug. 20 ruled that the military authorities do not have the right to exclude persons from defense areas on the ground that they might be potentially dangerous to national defense. He held that the United States is not in "immediate danger" of an attack or invasion by its enemies.

Dr. Hans Zimmerman, 38, a naturopathic physician and an American citizen holding an honorable discharge from peace time service in the United States army, was held in Honolulu when territorial officials were contending that the army had assumed control over every one in the Hawaiian Islands.

Born in Germany, Dr. Zimmerman had come to the United States in 1927. He had joined the army in 1929 and served 27 months in Honolulu. After being discharged he returned there to practice his profession.

When the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor, he said, he opened his clinic to treat the wounded. But on Dec. 8 he was asked to go to army headquarters for "five or 10 minutes," he charged, and he then was interned. He was placed in a camp, he charged, and remained in custody in Honolulu and in Camp McCoy, Wis., until March, 1943.

Dr. Zimmerman, who now lives in Chicago, said his only hearing was given him on the 12th day of his internment. It lasted 10 minutes. These, he said, were among the questions and answers:

Q.—Have you ever said Hitler would win the war? A.—No.

Tells of Trip in 1938.

Q.—Why did you discharge your American nurse? A.—I did not discharge her.

He then testified he and his wife, the former Miss Clara Davis of Rochester, N. Y., whom he married in 1935, made a trip to Germany and France in 1938.

Q.—What did you do on your trip to Germany? A.—I visited my sick father, who died two months later.

The Civil Liberties union heard of his predicament and filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for him in the federal court at San Francisco, Cal.

A petition also was filed in his behalf before the United States Supreme court, asking for a review of his case, Dr. Zimmerman reported. He said this was dismissed at the request of the army and government when he was released. "I'm still determined to go back to my home in Honolulu and win vindication and restore my good name," he said.

CHICAGO YOUTH AND HIGHWOOD GIRL DROWNED

The body of Philip Rizzo, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rizzo, of 1547 S. Kedzie av., was found in Bangs' lake, Wauconda, Lake county, about midnight by the Wauconda volunteer fire department, after the youth had been reported missing at 6 p. m. The father told Lake county Coroner Garfield R. Leaf that his son had gone swimming about 11:30 a. m. The body was found 60 feet from shore in six feet of water.

Geraldine Augard, 11, daughter of Mrs. Leona Augard, 319 Euclid av., Highwood, was drowned in the swimming pool at the Park Ridge School for Girls, where she was a pupil.

The Stars of Fiction Entertain Post Millions

POST editors today, more than ever before, give first-line importance to the quality and standard of the fiction in Post pages. Never before has the need been so great for relief in the minds and lives of a war-weary people.

Through the years—masters of fiction have considered the Post the nation's number one magazine. It follows that Post millions fall heir to the best stories from the pens of the great.

High in the Blue Book of modern fiction writers stand such names as Robert Carson, Phyllis Duganne (also in this week's issue), Margaret Lee Runbeck, Martha Albrand, Philip Wylie, R. Ross Annett, William Hazlett Upson and a score of others.

Their distinguished writing sets the new Post apart in Fiction, as it stands apart in War, Politics, Humor, Mystery, Business. To millions—week after week—the fact becomes more evident—that great writing naturally comes first to the new Post.

CHINESE DEFEAT JAP GAS ATTACK UPON HENGYANG

Troops Poisoned, but Kill 1,000 of Enemy.

CHUNGKING, China, July 4 (AP).—The Chinese high command asserted tonight that heavily reinforced Japanese troops, charging in close formation behind a barrage of mustard gas and artillery fire, assaulted Chinese positions in Hengyang Sunday and Monday but failed to budge the defenders.

"Under cover of a heavy artillery barrage and a large quantity of mustard gas, close enemy formations, all stripped to the waist, launched repeated fierce assaults on our positions in the northern and western suburbs," said a Chinese bulletin.

"Altho a portion of them were poisoned, our defenders stood their ground and struck back, regardless of sacrifice. After bitter all-night combat, our troops counted at least 1,000 enemy dead, including a high commanding officer.

Hengyang Still Safe.

"Chinese and American air forces gave continuous support to our troops and scored brilliant successes."

The bulletin said heavy fighting still was in progress but declared "the entrenched Chinese defenders still are holding their own, with Hengyang still safe in their hands."

Japanese forces which had bypassed Hengyang on the east and were last reported 46 miles south of the city were making further progress in their drive to seize the Canton-Hankow railway, on which Hengyang is a key point.

West of the Siang river a Japanese column, throwing out a protective screen for positions on the railway, captured Yungfeng, 45 miles northwest of Hengyang, the Chinese acknowledged.

Attack Jap Flanks.

The Chinese continued to attack the Japanese flanks, threatening to sever the enemy's lengthening supply lines at several points. The city of Siangsiang, a Japanese key point 60 miles north of Hengyang, was under Chinese attack, and other Chinese forces were reported making good progress in drives on Siangtan, 70 miles north-northeast of Hengyang and eastward toward the Yulo mountains.

Chinese attacking the Japanese base of Tengchung in western Yunnan province have captured the most important strongpoint in the town's defense system and have beaten off enemy attempts to regain the position, the Chinese announced.

Chinese troops have captured the village of Chanhsi, 22 miles west of Tengchung, thus narrowing to 26 miles the distance separating them from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's forces in northern Burma, a bulletin announced.

WAC Flies to War Area and Has Reunion with Son

A U. S. AIR SERVICE COMMAND BASE in ENGLAND, July 4 (AP).—Pvt. Gwendolyn Meeker of Robinson, Ill., one of 36 WAC telephonists flown to the European theater of operations recently, was by far the happiest of the group. She landed near a camp where her son, Jimmie, was stationed. Within a matter of hours a sympathetic commander had arranged to have him flown over to visit with her.

Yanks Capture Saipan Capital into a narrow neck of land at the north end of the island.

Nimitz reported 7,312 Japanese dead had been buried. Many other casualties had been buried or hidden by the enemy.

Capture of Garapan and Tanapag put the Americans in control of Tanapag harbor, Saipan's only sheltered port. Use of the port will simplify the problem of supplying the Yanks.

The bulletin said a small enemy force had infiltrated Sunday night to attack the rear of the American lines. The thrust was broken up, 25 Japs being killed. There were no American losses.

Japs Report Guam Raid.

New York, July 4 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said tonight that a "large number" of American carrier-based planes raided Guam Island Monday. The broadcast asserted Japanese fighter units and ground forces had shot down 20 planes, but insisted that "no damage was sustained by our side."

Jap People Alarmed.

MADRID, Spain, July 4 (AP).—Dispatches from Tokyo correspondents of German newspapers, which heretofore have belittled American victories in the Pacific, now are beginning to strike a note of alarm. The correspondent of the Muhchner Neueste Nachrichten, for example, reports the American landings on Saipan "electrified the Japanese people," who had been thinking of the war as something far away.

PARATROOPS LANDED

BY JACK TURCOTT.

[By wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

ALLIED HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 5 [Wednesday].—Paratroopers descended on Noemfoor Island off Dutch New Guinea yesterday, reinforcing invading American troops pushing northwestward from the beachhead they established Sunday, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The paratroopers were spearheading the advance, and medium tanks were blasting a path thru the jungles for the following troops.

Latest dispatches indicated that the Yanks had reached the village of Biefoeri, more than 2,000 yards beyond captured Kamiri air field, and were approaching Kornasoren air field [three miles from Kamiri on the northern coast].

Meet Jap Mortar Fire.

The reinforcing paratroopers, veterans of MacArthur's bloodless capture of Nadzab in September, 1943, dropped from the skies concealed by a smoke screen laid down by A-20 Havocs.

Aground, they encountered only minor opposition from scattered Japs using machine guns and mortars. The bulk of Jap strength on th island is believed to be at Namber air field, south of Kamiri.

Outflank Air Field.

The Yanks outflanked that field by their surprise amphibious operation Sunday, when their landing barges found their way thru the treacherous reefs on which the enemy had counted to protect Kamiri.

MacArthur's communication said the Americans now have established a strong perimeter around captured Kamiri air field.

JAPS SAVE COWS AND PIGS, BUT CIVILIANS ARE LEFT FOODLESS

WITH U. S. MARINES ON SAIPAN, June 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—Japanese military commanders drove the cows and pigs behind their lines when the Americans invaded Saipan, but left the Japanese civilians and dogs to shift for themselves.

Of the hundreds of Japanese civilians flushed from caves and fields none had been furnished with provisions or water. Enemy commanders apparently regarded the cows and pigs as valuable food but viewed the civilians and their pets as liabilities.

Examination of Charan Kanao and other populated sections now in American hands failed to disclose any important provisions for civilian protection, such as bomb shelters or trenches. The military, however, had such installations, some of them five years old.

IKE TO NIMITZ: 'WE'RE A SINGLE MIGHTY TEAM'

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 4 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower told Adm. Chester W. Nimitz today he was confident that "the United Nations have harnessed themselves into a single mighty team to defeat the enemies of justice and of freedom."

The general, replying to a message of congratulation from the U. S. Pacific fleet chief on the successful invasion of Europe, said "this allied force sends grateful thanks to you and your command for your message of encouragement and confidence."

He added "may success thruout the Pacific as well as here speedily come to our arms."

AURORA MOTHER GIVEN TOP U. S. MEDAL FOR SON

More than 100 close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Truemper gathered under the oaks on the lawn at the side of their home at 807 North av., Aurora, yesterday and saw Mrs. Truemper accept the congressional medal of honor awarded posthumously to her son.

He was 2d Lt. Walter E. Truemper, 25, an army air forces navigator, who was killed last Feb. 20 when he tried to land a damaged Flying Fortress in an unsuccessful effort to save the life of his wounded pilot, Lt. Clarence R. Nelson, of Brookfield. The not a pilot, he volunteered to try a landing in England after the crew had bailed out.

Couldn't Leave Home.

Brig. Gen. R. E. O'Neill, commandant of Chanute field, at Rantoul, went to Aurora to present the medal to Mrs. Truemper. It was one of the few times this medal has not been presented in Washington, D. C., by the President. But Mrs. Truemper, an invalid, asked that her son's medal be given to her at her home.

Two of her grown sons, Fred and Carl, carried Mrs. Truemper to an arm chair on the lawn, where her husband, a retired Aurora city commissioner, stood beside her.

In the family group were two more sons, Henry Jr. and George, and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Holtz and Miss Ann Truemper. Three other sons, Edward, a corporal; Oscar, a petty officer, and William, an army sergeant, are in service.

Weeps During Ceremony.

The ceremony was brief, lasting not more than 15 minutes, and Mrs. Truemper sobbed while Gen. O'Neill read the citation, with such phrases as "gallant devotion to duty" and "paid the supreme sacrifice."

Wet eyed onlookers thought Mrs. Truemper could not be listening to the general—until he stepped forward with the five pointed gold medal on a silk blue ribbon spangled with gold stars to place it around her neck.

Then she wiped her eyes, and held her head high and smiled.

BRITISH CAPTURE UKHRUL BASE ON INDIAN BORDER

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, July 4 (AP).—Fighting in monsoon rains at the India border, British imperial troops have captured Ukhrul, Japanese stronghold north of Imphal, it was announced today.

American troops in north Burma annihilated an enemy force attempting to penetrate the main air field at the besieged Japanese base of Myitkyina. Adm. Mountbatten said three Japanese attacks southwest of Myitkyina had been repulsed, with no important changes in the battle line in that area.

British troops reached Meiring, a drive of 25 miles in the strike from Imphal. The Japanese evacuated positions near Bishenpur after being shelled by allied artillery, the bulletin said.

Stassen Named Halsey's Assistant Chief of Staff

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 4 (AP).—Assignment of Lt. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, as assistant chief of staff and flag secretary to Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the 3d fleet, was announced today. Stassen had been aide and flag secretary to Adm. Halsey since August, 1943, while the latter was commander of South Pacific forces.

Baby Girl of 2 Lbs. 14 Ozs. Born to Mother Aged 22

A baby girl weighing 2 pounds 14 ounces was born prematurely yesterday to Mrs. Leverne Feak, 22, and is now in an incubator in Wesley Memorial hospital. The baby was delivered by the husband, Stephan, 32, in the Feak apartment, 350 N. State st., when his efforts to find a physician failed. Police took mother and child to the hospital.

NEGROES BARRED FROM POLLS IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

George Is Renominated by Large Margin.

Atlanta, Ga., July 4 (AP).—Negroes laid the basis for a court test of the Georgia "white" primary today when they were refused permission to participate.

They contented "themselves with token efforts and left the polls without incident when the managers informed them their names were not on the lists.

The Democratic state executive committee several days ago announced that the state-wide primary today would be restricted to white voters, and instructed election managers to refuse ballots to Negroes.

George Wins Renomination.

C. A. Scott, president of the Citizens' Democratic club of Fulton [Atlanta] county, and A. T. Walden, leader of the State Association of Democratic Clubs, both representing organizations composed of Negroes, made unsuccessful attempts to vote in today's primary. Walden said he planned to test the issue in the courts.

Sen. George won the renomination in the primary over a politically unknown opponent, sweeping every reporting county on the basis of unofficial returns. George piled up a popular vote of 56,000 against 8,652 for Farmer John W. Goolsby on incomplete returns.

In the 2d congressional district fiery Rep. Cox, bitter critic of the federal communications commission, apparently was headed for renomination over former Florida Congressman John Smithwick.

Rep. Peterson of the 1st district, who along with Cox asserted he was opposed by the CIO political action committee, led two opponents on the popular count and apparently was renominated.

Legislative candidates and numerous county contests were also decided today.

Rankin Far in Lead.

Jackson, Miss., July 4 (AP).—Rep. Rankin, bidding for his 11th consecutive term, held a strong lead tonight on the basis of early returns from Mississippi's Democratic primary.

Unofficial reports from 144 out of 221 precincts in the 1st district gave Rankin 8,668 to 1,603 for Charles G. Hamilton and 552 for Drexel Knight.

Incumbent Congressman Whitten of the 2d district was leading Gerald Chatham on the basis of returns from 132 of 196 precincts. The count was Whitten, 9,175; Chatham, 3,637.

In the 4th district, Rep. Abernethy, seeking a second term, had 4,124 votes to 337 for W. T. Brown in 92 out of 203 precincts.

DEWEY PASSES A QUIET FOURTH IN ALBANY HOME

Albany, N. Y., July 4—(AP).—Gov. Dewey spent the July 4 holiday at the executive mansion today, cleaning up his mail in preparation for a visit to his farm and a homecoming celebration at Pawling, N. Y., Friday. He will work in his office here tomorrow.

Pawling, a sleepy rural town in the same county as Hyde Park, N. Y., President Roosevelt's home town, received a visit yesterday from an advance guard of newspapermen who went there to look over accommodations. They returned to Albany with the unanimous opinion Pawling doesn't yet know what is going to hit it when a Presidential candidate—instead of a mere governor—spends the weekend just two miles away.

G.O.P. FOREIGN PLANK IMITATED BY DEMOCRATS

Action Is Affected by Tribune Influence.

Republicans met at Mackinac Island in September, 1943, and brought forth the declaration for "responsible participation by the United States in post-war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world."

The stipulation of "no surrender of sovereignty" was extremely distasteful to the internationalists, notably the Marshall Field press, the communist Daily Worker, and other organs of internationalism, their contention being that effective cooperation to preserve peace necessarily entails some derogation of sovereignty.

When the platform framers of the Republican national convention got down to work, the internationalists exerted all their influence to obtain a declaration in favor of an international police force, to eliminate any reference to American sovereignty and to keep the party program free of any expression militating against the projection of the United States into a world state.

G. O. P. Bars World State.

With THE TRIBUNE hammering hard in favor of the protection of American interests first, the internationalists signally failed in these undertakings. The Republican platform as finally approved declared:

"We shall seek to achieve such aims thru organized international cooperation and not by joining a world state.

"We favor participation by the United States in post-war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world."

Altogether, it was apparent that THE TRIBUNE had single handedly preserved sovereignty in the Republican platform. Now it has become no less apparent that THE TRIBUNE single handedly caused the Illinois Democrats to stop short of internationalism and adopt a compromise in their state platform between preserving sovereignty and betraying it.

State Democrats Also Dodge.

The Illinois Democrats faced the same dilemma as President Roosevelt did a few weeks ago and adopted the same method of escape. In explaining to a press conference his proposed new league of nations, the President emphasized that it involves no surrender of American sovereignty any more than the plan of international cooperation proposed by the Republicans at Mackinac Island. But he did not use the word "sovereignty," which the Republicans had preempted in foreign policy platform making. He said that his plan involved no impairment of independence, integrity, or administrative process. At his next press conference Mr. Roosevelt was asked if the terms he had used meant "sovereignty" and he said they do.

The President also declared against an international police force and a world state. He explained that such force as might be necessary to repress aggression would be provided cooperatively by the members of the league he proposes.

Internationalists Get Shock.

The internationalists were dismayed by the President's utterance in favor of preserving American sovereignty in international cooperation. Mr. Roosevelt at once was accused of "going nationalist" with an eye to carrying the nationalist midwest, without several of the larger states of which he can hardly hope to be elected to a fourth term.

The position taken by the President, however, was an impressive, if belated, vindication of THE TRIBUNE'S position from the start and potently aided THE TRIBUNE and its nationalist supporters in carrying the fight to complete victory in the Republican national convention and to a qualified success in the Illinois Democratic convention.

Green's Prediction Verified.

The President "went nationalist" less than 48 hours after Gov. Green of Illinois at the governors' conference at Hershey, Pa., had prophesied that Mr. Roosevelt would be found carrying the nationalist banner before the end of the 1944 election canvass. From numerous quarters there emanated immediately warnings not to believe Mr. Roosevelt, warnings that the President was repudiating his internationalist predilections merely to catch nationalist votes, as he repudiated the league of nations in 1932 to get the support of W. R. Hearst for the nomination.

DEMOCRATS PICK 2 WHO ALREADY WERE DELEGATES

Confusion in a new form confronted Illinois Democrats yesterday, but Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville and Corporation Counsel Hodes helped alleviate it by vowing that they would wear only one badge each when the Democratic national convention meets July 19.

Mayor Kelly and his political satellites, disregarding what the voters had done at the April primary, slated Hershey as a delegate at large and Hodes as an alternate at large during the Democratic state convention in the Chicago Stadium Monday night.

"They can't do that," said Hershey. "I'm a district delegate from the 21st district, elected by my neighbors."

Hodes was elected an alternate from the 2d district in April.

Mayor Kelly, who is 50th ward committeeman, county chairman, and national committeeman, will entertain the Illinois delegation at a luncheon in the Blackstone hotel July 18.

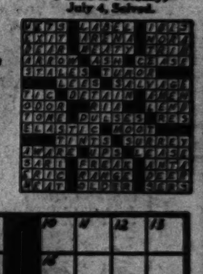
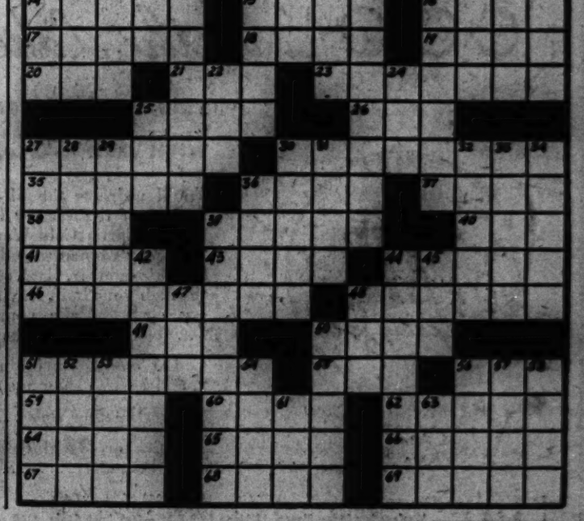
Puzzle of Tuesday, July 4, Solved.





O'DANIEL LASHES NEW DEAL RULE IN HIS NEW PAPER

Asks Housecleaning and American Rebirth.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.], vigorous opponent of the administration's foreign and domestic policies, today launched a nation-wide weekly newspaper, the W. Lee O'Daniel News, which called for a housecleaning in Washington to break up the Roosevelt dynasty and rid Washington of burocrats.

Sen. O'Daniel.

In the first issue of his publication the senator declared it was fitting to observe the nation's Independence day by calling for a new declaration of independence against the New Deal. He urged defeat of President Roosevelt and his yesmen in the house and the senate.

The paper featured a full page facsimile of the Declaration of Indepence, a full page facsimile of the Constitution, and a quarter page facsimile of the Bill of Rights in its four pages.

Blasts Communist Rule.

"These Communists and fellow travelers who took over the Democratic party about 10 or 11 years ago and renamed it the 'New Deal party' have proven beyond question of doubt that they think the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights as a whole are outmoded and out of date documents," the senator declared in the paper.

"They would make America over according to their putrid plans. Let us today rededicate ourselves to the task of maintaining the fundamental principles of the Constitution of the United States, and as elections come up this year let us dedicate ourselves to the task of a thoro housecleaning in Washington and clean out all this New Deal gang of Communists, Socialists, labor leader racketeers, and fellow travelers.

"Let us begin at the White House and let us include all of the 'yesmen' in the house and senate who for 10 or 11 years have performed like trained seals to do the bidding of the executive department of the government.

Asks Rebirth of America.

"Let us first end the rule of the burocrats and reestablish the government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Yes, America must be born again."

The paper is being supported by voluntary contributions and subscriptions. O'Daniel's appeals for funds over the radio brought a citation from Sen. Green [D., R. I.], chairman of the privileges and elections committee, to appear before that body to face questioning on improper solicitation of campaign funds.

O'Daniel said he would welcome inquiry. Green, who was placed in the senate by one of the most powerful political machines in the country, is an ardent New Dealer. O'Daniel said he would challenge the New Deal to prove that circulation of America's most historic documents is the violation of good conduct.

Two of the senator's children and his wife are listed as officers of the publication. Pvt. Mike O'Daniel is listed as president, Lt. Pat O'Daniel as vice president, and Mrs. O'Daniel as manager.

DRIVE FOR 15,000 METAL WORKERS OPENED BY WMC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—A drive to recruit between 15,000 and 20,000 men "with the muscular equipment of football players" for work in foundries and forges where a man power shortage exists was opened today by the war man power commission.

Chairman McNutt, announcing the drive in a press release, said castings and forgings are used in practically every piece of mechanized war equipment.

"While the work in a foundry is done in sweltering heat, it isn't as bad as that found by our fighting forces in some of the Pacific islands," he said.

The recruitment program will be nation-wide but the chief effort will be in communities where forges and foundries are centered. Most of the plants are in the Great Lakes states, New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey.

THE QUESTION.
How did you learn to swim?
WHERE ASKED.
Montrose beach.
THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. J. C. Simmons, housewife, 4546 Magnolia av.—I always was so afraid of water that I didn't dare get my head under it. One day my brother, an excellent swimmer, was holding me up. He pushed me into deep water just to see what I would do. I swam back to shore and was never afraid again.

John Gilewicz, minister, 2860 Woodard st.—I used to go swimming in a river with a bunch of boys. None of us could swim, but we all used to hold our breath and dive into a hole in the river and glide thru the water far enough so that we could touch bottom. One day while going thru the water I just started swimming.

Dorothy Berger, fusemaker, 1125 Schubert av.—After several lessons in a physical education class I learned to swim. They taught me diving and swimming at the same time and when I finished I could do both quite well. When I learned I could stay above the water if I just relaxed I wasn't afraid of the water.

Joseph Yunevich, machinist, 3530 Union av.—A gang of us boys were playing in a coal mine pond one afternoon. We didn't know how to swim but would float out into the water on logs. I fell off a log and swimming back was as easy as falling off the log. Some of the other boys tried it and we all became good swimmers.

Pat Walz, stenographer, 434 Wellington av.—While I was standing on the edge of a pool a fellow asked me if I could swim. I said, "No." "Well, you'll know how in a minute," he answered and pushed me in. I guess he thought I was kidding when I said I didn't know how, but he was right about my knowing how in a minute.

Marion Welmak, student, 2649½ N. Spaulding av.—There was always some one to help me when I was trying to learn to swim. One of my friends would let me lie across her arms or hold me by the back of my suit. I learned to float first, then dog paddle. I went to camp and learned how to swim the right way.

CAPITAL STATUE FOR ALL CREEDS IN WAR URGED

Erection of a monument in Washington, D. C., to symbolize Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish participation in the military and naval history of the Republic was urged yesterday by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, co-chairman of the Chicago Patriotic foundation. Mayor Kelly and Col. A. A. Sprague are the other co-chairmen.

Hodes proposed that the monument include three sculpture figures, representing heroes to be chosen by a congressional commission. As subjects, he suggested John Paul Jones, Commodore John Barry, Commodore Uriah P. Levy, Capt. Colin Kelly, Sgt. Meyer Levin, Edwin Hill, Herbert Jones, and Robert Scott, for consideration by the commission.

BANKERS ASKED TO PUSH WAR LOAN SECURITIES

Canvass Is Urged as Bond Sales Lag.

Investment brokers and bankers were asked yesterday by Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the war bond drive for Chicago and Cook county, to stimulate sales of fifth war loan coupon securities among their individual customers. In a telegram to 250 large investment firms and banks, Clarke said that with only four more days of the drive remaining in which to sell these issues, "sales are definitely lagging, with response from individual investors especially disappointing."

The four coupon, or market, issues are intended primarily for corporate, institutional, or large individual investors, Clarke explained, but they may be of special interest to many smaller individual buyers.

Canvass Is Urged.

Requesting the brokers and bankers to make an immediate canvass of all individual customers and urge investment in the market issues, he disclosed that there is the necessity of additional individual sales of 70 million dollars by Saturday if the city and county quota is to be reached.

Calling attention to the advantages of coupon issues, Clarke said that the 2½ per cent bonds of 1965-'70 and the 2 per cent issue of 1952-'54 may be used as collateral for bank loans, are readily marketable at any time, and interest is paid semi-annually. These securities are issued in denominations of $500 and up.

The two other issues are the 1¼ per cent notes of series B, 1947, and the ⅞ per cent certificates of indebtedness of series C, 1945. These are issued in denominations of $1,000 and up.

Drive to Continue.

Clarke emphasized that the closing of sales of coupon issues on Saturday does not end the 5th war loan drive. Sales to individuals of E, F, and G bonds and treasury notes, series C, will continue and count toward the city-county individual quota of 277 million dollars until July 31.

The bond drive chairman said that the city-county bond drive is lagging, with the latest figures showing total individual and corporate sales of $357,401,000, or 62.35 per cent of the quota of $894,014,000. He asserted that this showing is "far behind" the record for Illinois and the nation.

Holiday Birthday

Nancy Ann Kiely, 3 years old yesterday, observed her birthday in patriotic Fourth of July fashion by emptying her penny bank to buy a $50 war bond. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Kiely of 2935 W. 64th st. They helped her count the coins she had been saving since Christmas.

2 WOMEN TO SIT IN CELLS A DAY FOR 1935 MURDER

On the ninth anniversary of their murder here of Ervin Lang, 28, a grocery clerk, Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, 52, and Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 55, will be placed in solitary confinement tomorrow at the state reformatory for women at Dwight, where both are serving 180 years at hard labor.

Lang, a son-in-law of Mrs. Dunkel, was strangled and dismembered on July 6, 1935, by Mrs. Smith in her north side apartment. The torso was found in a swamp near Hammond, Ind., and the legs near Munster, Ind. Mrs. Dunkel said she planned the murder because Lang, who had been living with her for several months after his wife's death, became attentive to other women.

The annual penance for the pair was decreed by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Criminal court as "a deterrent to crime and an admonition to criminals that you are suffering a living death, tortured by your consciences and working at hard labor behind the walls of the penitentiary."

EQUALITY PLANK OF DEMOCRATS HIT BY NEGRO

Record to Cost Votes, He Says.

The "hypocritical" equal rights plank of the Democratic state platform, with the refusal of Illinois Democrats to name a Negro as delegate-at-large or alternate to the national convention, will cost the party thousands of Negro votes in November, Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, predicted yesterday.

Brown compared the Illinois Democratic convention, which refused recognition of Negroes as delegates or alternates, with the Republican state convention, which named William E. King, south side Negro leader, as a delegate-at-large.

The Democratic state plank on equal rights which stated "we stand with President Roosevelt and Sen. Lucas against denying the right to vote to southern Negroes," is particularly offensive to Negroes who have fought in vain against the discrimination of the Roosevelt administration, Brown said.

He charged Lucas had worked in collusion with southern Democrats in consistent opposition to legislation designed to benefit Negroes.

Brown cited the bill introduced by Sen. Brooks, calling for an appropriation of $25,000 to investigate race riots, which was referred to the audit committee, of which Lucas is chairman, where it has remained buried since last year.

TRANSIT CASE DRAGS ALONG FOR 17 YEARS

Background of Problem Is Explained.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Nobody knows the answer to the most important question involved in the Chicago traction problem: When will street car and elevated passengers get better service?

If there is an answer soon, it will come thru the federal district courtroom of Judge Michael L. Igoe. That courtroom is the forum for the presentation of ideas, practical and visionary, on traction; for 17 years it has echoed with solutions. Not one, so far, has been found workable.

Before the court at present is a proposal to take the surface lines out of a receivership that has existed since 1927 and throw them into bankruptcy. The court has indicated sympathy with the idea of a change. The city of Chicago, bent on municipal ownership, and certain investors also, are opposed to anything so drastic.

Background Is Needed.

To understand the Chicago traction puzzle some background is essential. The surface lines carry 2½ million passengers a day and have an annual gross income of about 60 million dollars. The elevated carries something like a half million persons a day and has a gross of about 15 millions a year. For a long time the surface lines have been earning 5 millions or more annually. The L has shown a deficit of 20 million dollars in 20 years. Even with high war time traffic, it is barely meeting operating expenses.

In 1927 the surface lines' 20 year franchise expired. In the period from 1916 to 1930 these properties averaged earnings of more than 10 millions a year, and built up the city traction fund, under a split of profits, to more than 45 millions, exclusive of interest earnings by the city. The fund in large measure has been spent for subways.

Mortgage Partly Paid.

A first mortgage bond issue of 95 millions came due in 1927 and because of lack of franchise the creditors could not be paid off. The receivership was ordered and since then the properties of the lines have been operated for the benefit of the first mortgage holders. They have been in part paid off [23 millions] and they have received interest of 5 per cent regularly.

On the other hand, junior bondholders who own 36 millions of surface lines paper have received nothing since the receivership. Their hope of getting any returns have grown tenuous.

The receivership has been expensive. Numerous committees representing investor groups have drawn large fees thru the 17 years of surface lines bondage. The city has thruout refused to grant a franchise to the company unless it merges with the L. Planning to that end, plus other receivership expense, has been estimated in official documents as costing 4 millions.

Still, during the depression years while the L was quietly going broke, the surface lines and its clanking rolling stock have piled up a cash reserve of more than 30 millions, of which 22 millions or more are reserved for renewals.

Reject Merger Plan.

A year ago, after extensive hearings, the Illinois commerce commission rejected a unification plan calling for the issuance of 179 millions of securities, stating that the scheme was financially unsound and held no promise of improved transportation.

The city later formulated a plan under which it would buy the surface lines properties for 75 millions and the L for 9½ millions, provided a municipal ownership referendum wins and the courts approve the issuance of revenue certificates for the needed 84½ millions—and investment bankers buy them. Mayor Kelly announced that the senior bondholders committee heads would recommend the deal to their investors.

Judge Igoe Displeased.

Informed of this, Judge Igoe evinced displeasure with the plan. He made it plain that he would not be a "hatchet man" and take over the work of beating the surface lines juniors into line. He asserted the senior bondholders had not cooperated with the court and that they were determined to take nothing less than their original investment and 5 per cent interest.

Arguments on the bankruptcy matter will be heard Aug. 16. If bankruptcy is ordered, the investor committees will all be dismissed and the court will appoint an impartial trustee to liquidate the properties. This trustee will manage the lines and the securities and exchange commission will assist him in formulating a financial setup. Interest payments, the judge has indicated, will cease.

The position of the city and the senior bondholders is that bankruptcy would delay a solution. Judge Igoe's expressed belief is that a system that has produced no results in 17 years can't be rated highly; and that municipal ownership or any other scheme would move forward as speedily under bankruptcy as under equity receivership.

2 GUNMEN SLAY EX-CONVICT AND ESCAPE IN AUTO

6 Shots from Behind Fell Murderer.

Daniel Rooney, 37, a west side hoodlum who was released from Joliet penitentiary in December after serving a 15 year sentence for murder, was shot to death by two men last night in front of 3116 5th av.

Daniel Rooney.

Witnesses who saw the killing while sitting on their front porches told Warren av. police they thought the shots were firecrackers until they saw Rooney fall.

Police said that Rooney had been shot at least six times, three times in the head. Two men ran to an automobile parked just east of the scene and fled southwest in 5th av., then turned south in Troy st. and escaped.

Girl, 14, Sees Slaying.

Witnesses described the killers vaguely. The first was said to be heavy-set with dark trousers and a white shirt. The second, about 50 years old, was heavy-set with gray streaked hair. He wore a light shirt and light slacks.

Shirley Ware, 14, of 3119 5th av. was one of the witnesses of the slaying.

Rooney went to prison in 1928 for the murder of William Watson, 22, of 311 S. Western av. who was shot to death when he refused to put up his hands during a robbery in the soft drink parlor owned by his father.

Woman Friend Sought.

Rooney's draft card gave his address as 4856 Washington blvd., which is that of a brother, Edward, a city building inspector. Edward told police Daniel had worked at the Herbert H. Davis Co., sheet metal workers, in Cicero.

A waitress in a restaurant in the vicinity of Madison st. and Kedzie av., with whom Rooney had been seen recently, was sought for questioning.

During prohibition days Rooney was a member, police said, of the Clifford-Riley gang, which ran beer on the west side. Both Willie Clifford and Mickey Riley were found with scores of bullets in their bodies outside a Capone gang hangout at 4823 Cermak rd.

A brother, William, who controled the powerful Sheet Metal Workers' union, was shot to death in March, 1931, in front of his home at 1517 N. Austin blvd.

Second Brother in Joliet.

Another brother, John, is serving a life term in Joliet penitentiary for the murder of Stanley Gross, 21, a watchman for Goldblatt Brothers department store, 1615 Chicago av., on May 23, 1933.

There has been a REVOLUTION in Women's Reading!

A Statement by the World's Largest Publisher of Mass Magazines and Books

RECENTLY one of the women's service magazines completed a very fine survey. It shows that nearly half the women in America read Good Housekeeping, Ladies' Home Journal, McCall's and Woman's Home Companion.

But what about the other half of American women, the ones who do not read service magazines? . . . Do you wonder what they read? And what market they offer for your product? And how may you best place your sales message before them?

Several magazine publishers, including myself, discovered these women as a market for magazines a long time ago. For more than a quarter of a century, we have been busily cultivating this market until today our combined sales outstrip the service magazines by several million copies a month.

Discovery of this great magazine market followed the invention of a new fiction form, the true-life story. Here, in its way, was an innovation as revolutionary as the airplane or the radio. Old and conservative magazine publishers would have nothing to do with it. But a newer and more adventurous generation of publishers, whose interest was frankly in manufacturing a product for profit, began to experiment with magazines of true-life stories.

These new magazines sold amazingly well from the start. Like all manufacturers, the publishers of these magazines worked constantly to improve the quality of their products. As they developed the true-life story toward literary perfection, a surprising thing happened.

In their early state, these romance magazines found favor mostly with women of factory-worker families. But as such magazines became better products and grew in circulation, they held their original factory-worker audiences, but added new readers in higher social and economic levels.

At the same time a process of evolution was going on in the circulation of women's service magazines. Having reached the sales saturation point in their original white-collar market, they were forced to expand their circulations into lower economic and social strata.

This twofold leveling-off process has been going on slowly for at least a decade. During the past three years, its pace has been accelerated by the impact of wartime conditions.

Today Modern Magazines and the women's service magazines all place nearly three-quarters of their circulations in homes having an annual income between $1500 and $5000—the only market with the financial and numerical strength to absorb the output of mass-production industry.

There has always been room in this mass-production market for the service magazines, on the one hand, and Modern Magazines and the other screen and romance publications, on the other hand, to expand their circulations without any appreciable overlapping. And that is just what has happened! Each type of magazine has selected readers who think in an individual way, and who respond to editorial material geared to their specific kind of thinking.

The service magazine readers are quickly imaginative. They can find living realism in stories that sketch emotions, that tell highly complex plots that are laid against unfamiliar settings. Imaginatively, they are self-motivated!

Other women prefer Modern Magazines because they enjoy stories about situations they could encounter in their own daily lives—stories with simple plots, written with a wealth of emotional detail, and illustrated with photographs to intensify still more their air of realism. Imaginatively, these women are externally motivated!

Let me repeat! Modern Magazines cleave vertically through all income and social levels, just as do the service magazines—but with ONE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE: Modern Magazine readers are externally motivated; the service magazine readers are self-motivated. These two types of thinking are clear-cut, distinct—which means that there is extremely little circulation overlap between Modern Magazines and any of the service magazines.

Modern Magazines has just made a survey of magazine circulation duplication, starting where other publishers' duplication studies have ended. More clearly than ever before, this study reveals the reading habits of American women, and emphasizes the cleavage of the market into two great vertical divisions—the service magazine readers, and the readers of true-life and screen magazines.

I call the latter "The Forgotten 50%". I refer to the fact that these fifty per cent of American women are forgotten, quite literally, by most researchers—and by many manufacturers of foods, automobiles, radios, household appliances and a host of other products when advertising appropriations are being allocated.

Advertising space is still available in Modern Magazines. You are invited to inquire about the great sales opportunity offered by this distinctive market.

TAXES AND OPPORTUNITY.

America has been the land of opportunity. Here many a poor man has, by his own efforts, built a fortune.

The successful got that way thru their ability, application, and saving. Some got there by building their own businesses. Henry Ford, the only billionaire in the country, started in a blacksmith shop. On June 16 it was exactly 41 years since the day Ford incorporated his company with $28,000, most of which was supplied by friends who believed in him. Not a dollar additional has been invested in the business apart from earnings. Here was a multiplication of 40,000 fold in two score of years.

Many others became men of financial substance as employes. An outstanding example is the Scandinavian immigrant, William S. Knudsen. He had served an apprenticeship in a bicycle shop in Denmark before coming here to work in shipyards. Later he worked in the shops of the Erie railroad. Eventually he got into one of the automobile plants, and for a number of years he earned a half million dollars a year as president of General Motors, a company in which he became a large stockholder.

These achievements and thousands upon thousands of more modest ones were possible when men could progress by their ability, industry, and saving. That is not true today. The tax on corporation profits now is at such a level that new business enterprises are not coming into existence. The number of new corporations during the last five years is the smallest in a long statistical record. Moreover, the amount of capital obtained by new security issues has been at the lowest level in many years. It's as plain as day. A tax of 80 per cent on the earnings of successful corporations removes all incentive to develop new business enterprises or to expand existing ones.

No man already in a position of high responsibility in business, however competent and self-confident he may be, is able today to buy an enterprise and hope to pay for it out of the earnings that can be disbursed to him and saved. No poor man can hope to amass a fortune.

Those fortunes already in existence, having been accumulated in times gone by, will be whittled down rapidly as the estate and inheritance taxes force the liquidation of properties owned. The sales being forced, with income taxes keeping bidders away, will result in declining prices. The steady liquidation will inevitably depress values, and the wealth of the country will be undermined.

Taxes which go to the length of taking 80 per cent of earnings, and then as much as 85 per cent of the earnings disbursed, reduce the profit that can be realized to investors to 3 per cent. The prospective owner knows that all the risk of loss remains his. Therefore he doesn't venture his money in new projects to increase the production of goods for the general welfare and to provide additional employment.

With the government taking up to 97 per cent of net income, state socialism is now in existence. Opportunity is dead, and it is questionable whether even the enterprises now existing can last as long as 10 years. Indeed, many enterprises which flourished before the war have already succumbed and will not resume operations when the peace comes.

THE PACIFIC FUTURE.

Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, has called attention again to America's future in the Pacific with a statement given in Los Angeles the other day in which he said that the United States ought to retain the Pacific air bases it has built "for the commerce of tomorrow and to prevent another Pearl Harbor." Comdr. Atherton said that the Pacific's greatest obstacles, tremendous distances and impassable jungles, have been conquered by the construction of hundreds of air bases and that these can be used in peace "to develop the tropics and to permit exchange of good will with the Pacific nations."

It should not be assumed from this statement that commercial imperialism is going to be any more popular in this country after the war than it was in pre-war days. Americans do not want to build up an empire of subject peoples to be exploited. We do believe, however, that the United States should have equal peace time trade opportunities with every other nation which trades in the Pacific, and, as Mr. Atherton pointed out, aviation has conquered the two greatest obstacles to access and development of the Pacific islands and their peoples. There is no reason why the natives of these islands should not benefit greatly from the trade opportunities that free and unmonopolized commercial aviation will bring.

America's most important reason for holding the Pacific air bases is national security, as Mr. Atherton has stated. We are the savior of the Pacific now, and we shall be its guardian henceforth because we are the only nation strong enough to keep the peace there. We cannot lay ourselves open to the possibility of another sneak attack upon Hawaii and our other Pacific possessions by allowing the air bases we have built to fall into foreign hands, no matter how friendly the foreign power that wants them. An American administration in Washington will recognize this fact and see that our rights and our power are protected when the peace is written.

BOTH WAYS ON THE SAME TRACK.

For more than six months the Rock Island railroad has been operating its trunk route from Rock Island to Blue Island, Ill., which funnels the trains from the entire 8,000 mile system into the Chicago terminal, under a system known as centralized traffic control. This is a complex setup of high speed switches electrically operated, control boards which plot a train's course, and gadgets and instruments as modern and effective as present day ingenuity can make them. Thru use of this system, the railroad has been able to cut the average running time over the 182 mile stretch by 20 per cent, resulting in that much more war traffic handled.

Double track railroads in the past operated on the principle that one track was for the exclusive use of outbound trains and the other for inbound trains. The only way a fast train could pass a slow one was for the slower train to go into a siding. This resulted, of course, in further delay for the slow train. With centralized traffic control, the fast train passes the slow one simply by switching from inbound to outbound track, or vice versa, at hardly any decrease in speed. Colored lights on the control board tell the operators where every train is and, together with automatic devices, prevent collisions. Operators can signal the engineer in the cab of a moving train and can throw switches as far distant as 70 miles from their control towers.

Several other lines have adopted centralized traffic control on parts of their systems, and the Rock Island's experience indicates that it will be one of the great developments in post-war railroading. The introduction of CTC, radio communication between engine and caboose, the use of lightweight diesel powered trains, and installation of the latest radio and wire communication systems prove that the railroads are ready to meet the challenge of the airplane and highway operators. Railroads have done a splendid job thruout the war and they seem determined to do an equally effective job when peace comes.

THE KIND OF MEN WHO WIN BATTLES.

Three stories sent from the combat fronts within the last week have shown what kind of men we have fighting on our side.

There was Johnny Hall, the Tennessee gunner on a Liberator. A Zero pilot fired a 20 millimeter shell over Truk just before Johnny blew the Zero to bits. The shell killed Johnny's pal, the pilot, and wounded the co-pilot severely. Johnny took the controls, altho he had never flown a plane before, made the four hour trip back to the base, and landed the ship successfully under the co-pilot's direction.

Another Liberator started home from a raid on Yap with its nose wheel, wing flaps, and brakes knocked out by anti-aircraft fire. There was mortal danger that the plane, on landing, would overrun the air field and crack up, as other crippled planes have done, to become a pyre for its crew. But Lt. Allen D. Bolotin and Sgt. Marion C. Wiatrowski, two Chicago boys, hung a parachute from each waist gun port. When the plane touched the runway, they pulled the rip cords. The billowing silk slowed the plane to a safe stop. Bolotin and Wiatrowski claimed no credit. They'd read about it somewhere, they explained.

Then there was the Irishman serving in a British paratrooper outfit on the Normandy peninsula. A heavy Nazi tank approached the paratroopers, who had no guns big enough to stop it. The Irishman ran out in the path of the tank and peppered its armor with a tommy gun. The tank driver, amazed at a man who would attack with so futile a weapon, stopped. At that two companions ran out and blew up the tank with grenades. Later in the day the trio destroyed two German gun carriers by the same unorthodox tactics.

Courage is essential to the soldier. Often it's no more than being afraid to run away. There is no national monopoly on courage. But the man who is merely unafraid to die too often dies. It's the soldier who uses his wits to enable him to fight another day who wins battles.

The Nazi army has iron discipline and splendid training. The Jap has fanatical courage. It is men who have been raised in a free world, the individualists, who can improvise, and do the jobs for which they were not trained, and carry out the audacious surprises that save lives and win battles. That is too much to expect of a soldier who has been told all his life that he is merely a pawn in the plans of an all-powerful state.

WHO NOMINATES THE DEMOCRATS?

Sen. Andrews, a Florida Democrat, says that he is going to see Democratic Chairman Hannegan and other men "close to the President" to urge Mr. Roosevelt to allow the Democratic convention a free hand in selecting the Vice Presidential nominee. Sen. Andrews says that Vice President Wallace is not very popular in the south and that there is "considerable demand" for an outstanding southern man to replace him. The statement recalls Sen. Lucas' boner four years ago when he told the delegates he would have sought the Vice Presidential nomination "if this had been a free convention."

Sen. Andrews' statement is another amazing confession. Everybody knows that Mr. Wallace was the hand-picked candidate of President Roosevelt, forced down the throats of the Democratic delegates who met in Chicago four years ago, but hardly anybody would expect a party wheel horse like Sen. Andrews to verify it. When the Democratic national convention has to obtain the consent of the party leader to use its own judgment in selecting a candidate, it has ceased to be the convention of a political party. A lot of people in America realize this, and that is why the fourth termers are finding the going so tough and are displaying signs of worry.

Sen. Andrews, like other New Dealers, is so accustomed to one man rule that he probably does not realize his statement was a political boner. No doubt, like Mr. Lucas, he is used to being told when he may and may not use his own discretion as a senator and he thinks that what's good enough for the senate is good enough for a party convention. The people ought to be able to set him right on that score in November.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The number of cycles in household electricity is usually 15 45 60 75.
2. Linseed oil should be associated with which one of these? Physician Salesman Diesel engine Painter.
3. The famous flatiron building is located in which city? Los Angeles Dallas New York Chicago.
4. Which one of the following is a component of all acids? Hydrogen Oxygen Chlorine Metal.
5. A professional ball club in the American association is called the Apostles. Their home city would be St. Louis St. Paul Louisville Milwaukee
6. Here's a problem in simple arithmetic. A farm boy started to fill a wagon with wheat, beginning at 10 a. m. He put in one grain the first minute; two grains the second; four the third, etc., always doubling the number of grains each minute. The wagon was completely full at 11 a. m. What time was it when he had just one quarter of a load of wheat in the wagon?

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

A LOOK AT LEGHORN.

Since the allied advance in Italy is bearing down upon the important port of Leghorn, which is Livorno to its citizens, we rise to remark that it is famous for hats and chickens. Leghorn hats for male and female, of soft, plaited straw, and Leghorn chickens, familiar to poulterers, originated in this city and its hinterland, and were spread over the world by its shipping.

Leghorn has never been an objective for Italian tourists, altho it contains stuff that is worthy of an archaeologist's attention. In the realm of commerce, however, it has had an international reputation for several centuries. English business and banking firms used to be strongly intrenched there, because it was a free and neutral port from 1691 to 1868 [with an interim of Napoleonic interference], and if you wish to know more about that, re-read the first part of the not-so-old best seller entitled "Anthony Adverse."

The English tradition in Leghorn has literary sidelines. Tobias Smollett, the novelist, wrote "Humphrey Clinker" in one of its suburbs, died there, and is buried in its old English cemetery. Shelley spent many of his last days in and around Leghorn, and wrote most of his tragedy, "The Cenci," there. The Gulf of Spezia, immediately north of Leghorn, was the scene of his drowning.

We can find no guide book raptures about Leghorn's cathedral, but English architects may point toward it with pride, for its façade was designed by Inigo Jones, forerunner of Sir Christopher Wren. Internationalists should gloat over the place, for its commercial importance started when the Medicis of Florence invited thither "men of the East and the West, Spaniards and Portuguese, Greeks, Germans, Italians, Hebrews, Turks, Moors, Armenians, Persians, and others."

HOLIDAY PLAN.

When I've a holiday in view
I plan to rise at five,
When grass is flecked with sparkling dew,
When nature's all alive;
And then to walk thru wooded lanes
And breathe the pure ozone,
Which makes the blood rush thru my veins
And builds up body tone;
To see the animals at play,
Suspecting no one near,
To hear the robins' early lay
Resounding sweet and clear.
To make these blessings all come true
I lie in bed and snore,
For when I planned these things to do
It was the night before.

Old Joe's Last Laugh.

"Old Joe Crouch," observed Uncle Ezra, "had a weakness for auction sales. He attended every one within reach and always came home with a wagonload of old furniture. He'd let his taxes go delinquent to buy a walnut bureau, and his woodshed and barn were cluttered up with corner cupboards, cord beds, ladder-back chairs, whatnots, and spinning wheels.

"One day Joe got tangled up with a corn shredder and departed this life, leaving many bills unpaid. His widow decided she would offer Joe's furniture at public sale. Antique dealers came from far and near. When the sale was over she had enough cash to lift the mortgage on the farm, put a new roof on the barn, and send the oldest boy away to school."

Ezra meditated a moment and then concluded his monolog: "And in spite of that, Joe's old neighbors still insist that he was cracked."

FLOWERS DO NOT KNOW.

The flowers do not know we are at war.
They climb the garden fence in gay profusion.
Flowers know what the earth was fashioned for;
They do not bend it to a dread conclusion.
They dance along the lane where once you trod.
Flowers do not know we are at war.

S. C. L. writes: "I will be 18 just after school opens this fall and will have enrolled in the last half of my senior year. Will I be deferred until February to finish? My brother, who also was in his senior year and would have been graduated this June, was drafted in March. His board told him the change in regulations prevented his deferment."

ANSWER: The section of the regulations granting deferment to students enrolled in the last half of any academic year until they complete that part of the school year is still in effect. His board was in error.

SUN AND HEAT MAY BRING ILLNESS.

UNDER certain conditions, the light of the sun—which is responsible for all growing things—can become a dangerous enemy. The human body may become "cooked" when it is exposed to the direct rays of Old Sol. Instead of temporary discomfort, a menacing disorder may be brought about. We call the malady "heat stroke" because unconsciousness may appear quickly.

Numerous cases will be encountered during torrid days. The situation is worse if the humidity is high. This nullifies the cooling effects of evaporation. Those who are afflicted with a chronic disease—for example, of the kidneys, heart, etc.—will be more susceptible.

Most of us are familiar with the symptoms. One of the earliest is that sweating ceases. Listlessness, weakness, headache, or dizziness may be presented. The pulse rate will be rapid. These signs are sufficiently important to merit attention. If the victim can take a rest in the shade or a tepid to cool bath, he may avoid serious consequences.

If exposure continues, however, abnormal manifestations will increase, with urinary frequency, nausea, vomiting, and muscular twitching. If a thermometer is used, the reading will be 105 degrees F. or more. By this time, the patient will probably exhibit indications of circulatory collapse. In fact, coma may be on the way.

This is an emergency and means that fever must be reduced promptly. The best rule is to strip the clothing from the individual and sprinkle the body with ice water, packing the head and neck regions in crushed ice. Gentle friction is applied to the skin, which must be kept moist, while fanning is maintained to induce evaporation.

The temperature must be recorded every fifteen minutes as it may drop sharply. As soon as it has reached 102 degrees, ice is removed and the sufferer wrapped in a blanket or sheet and allowed to rest in a comfortable spot. Constant watchfulness will be demanded as the level may again rise, whereupon vigorous treatment must be resumed. If an air cooled room is available, the patient may be covered with sufficient clothing for protection. Extra fluids may be required and it may be necessary to inject normal salt solution or glucose into a vein. Hospital care is highly desirable.

There is another type of prostration which may come with no direct exposure. We term this "heat exhaustion" and here again, while the temperature may register no more than 100 to 102 degrees, fatalities have been reported. The epidermis is pale and cool to the touch. The chief complaints are nausea and giddiness. Stimulation, rather than cooling is in order. Hot water bottles may be helpful, but more value lies in the employment of warm drinks [tea preferred] and the administration of aromatic spirits of ammonia. This is not sunstroke but it is a special ailment which occurs during close, muggy days.

All who perspire profusely will need replacements of minerals—common salt—10 to 15 grains several times daily. Under this management, muscle cramps will disappear. Much the same results will follow the sucking of lemon drops [sugar]. At any rate, those who work hard during sizzling weather will demand salt tablets.

WHOOPING COUGH.

E. H. writes: I am told that whooping cough is three weeks coming, three weeks present, and three weeks going. Is this correct?

REPLY.

After exposure, the malady may develop in from two days to three weeks. Sneezing and bronchial irritation persists for one to two weeks, followed by the whooping interval of approximately one month. Complete recovery requires an additional two to four weeks.

CHIGGERS.

A. K. writes: I expect to go to a region where I understand chiggers abound. Do you have any instructions on treatment of these pests?

REPLY.

Yes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflets.

BUNIONS.

M. M. writes: What causes bunions?

REPLY.

Bad posture, poorly fitting footgear, improper walking habits, etc.

Much Obliged, Chum.

We thank thee meekly, OPA,
For everything that comes our way.

For granting us the right to eat
[Whenever we can get it] meat.

We thank thee for our daily bread,
For pretty tokens, blue and red.

We thank thee for thy Noble Plan
Of feeding the forgotten man.

For saving us a pretty penny
On food of which there isn't any.

We don't know why, but anyway,
We thank thee meekly, OPA.

PUBLIUS OVIDIUS SAYSO.

Money, Money, Money!

Nobody at all has invited this department to expound its views on the international monetary situation, which is now receiving the solicitous attention of the Unanimous Nations in their nice cool mountain rendezvous. But our benevolence would be less than global if we failed to light one little candle for the guidance of the groping researchers.

Our suggestion, for what it's worth, is this: If an international bank is to be established, with the United States providing most of the cash, a bank with practically all of its cage windows marked "Paying Teller," why not establish it where the money now is [or was when last heard from]—at Fort Knox.

There's a lot of gold stacked away down there, we hope, we hope, we hope. People used to tell us that in October, 1941, our gold holdings reached a peak of $22,796,000,000. Since then, of course, there has been some evaporation, owing to circumstances beyond our comprehension; but even as recently as last April the treasury said it still had some 21½ billions, which was almost two-thirds of the world's monetary gold.

Of course the demand is steady. In England we use gold to buy English currency to pay the wages of G. I. Joe, whose other name is legion, and when he isn't too busy dodging bullets and doing some shooting on his own account, he spends his pay in England, so the British not only get our gold but get their own money back, too.

This presumably means quite a constant outflow of gold across the Atlantic. But Fort Knox is close enough to the seaboard to make it fairly convenient. And, as the Encyclopedia Britannica points out, the vaults are not only "bomb proof and burglar proof" but made of a special steel which is "torch proof," leaving nothing to be desired in the matter of security—unless it be to make them politician proof.

Thoughts for November.

Changing horses in a river,
When its banks are overflowing,
Is a thought to make one shiver,
Make one wonder where one's going.

On the other hand, 'twould seem Hardly less than suicidal
To be flound'ring in midstream
On a horse without a bridle.

So perhaps 'twere wise indeed
[We don't wish to be pedantic]
To select a better steed—
Something safer, elephantic.

When the nation's in dire plight
Let no ancient saw misguide her;
Changing horses may be right!
Sink the horse and save the rider!

Pessimistic Youth.

A north side lady reports that her son, aged 7, wants some acorns to plant in his victory garden because he has been told that great oaks from little acorns grow and he thinks the shade would be comforting while waiting for the end of the war. At that, the trees might be nice for his great-grandchildren in World War VI.

In All Fairness.

Don't blame Miss Winn;
She isn't in.

Timely Poem.

Don't say we didn't warn you, girlie:
Do your Christmas shopping early!

Global Vice President Wallace is on his way home. Hope he didn't forget to bring the empty milk bottles—or take a deposit. D. A.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

IS ANY ONE INDISPENSABLE?

Camp Endicott, R. I., June 29.—I am in the United States navy and am unable, because of navy regulations, to do any campaigning for the party of my choice. I do believe, however, that my thoughts, which follow, express the feelings of many.

Is any one indispensable? There is not one of us who is indispensable. Take a military unit in the heat of battle. The officer in charge is killed or removed from action and immediately the next in command takes over and proceeds into battle. All the officers in the unit could be killed, and the highest rated enlisted man would take charge and the unit would keep right on going.

In private business the president of a large or small business dies or is removed by other cause. Immediately the next man in charge takes over and the business goes on as usual. The same is true in any club, fraternal organization, or church.

In the largest business in the United States, our government, if the President dies or is removed by other cause, what happens? The Vice President takes over in some cases, or the people elect a new man as at the start of a new term. Is any one indispensable? This is a great land possessed with many men of intelligence. Men who, any one of them, would be capable of taking over the leadership. Washington, Lincoln, Eisenhower, MacArthur—not one was or is indispensable. Mr. Roosevelt are you indispensable?

NAVY SPECIALIST.

HAY FEVER REMEDY.

Chicago, June 29.—Rapidly the hay fever season is approaching, and judging from the abundant rag weed crop, which one sees wherever he goes, we victims are in for a terrible time. It seems to me the people we elect to our city government could show some semblance of humane feeling, and see to it our city is rid of this curse. Once in a while they have in scattered districts cut the weeds down, but that generally has taken place after the bloom has developed, and the air becomes laden with the pollen.

Then no more has been done about it. Why not a law to compel vacant lot owners to keep these weeds cut and if they fail to obey the law, then the city can step in and cut them down and send in a bill to the lot owner, as they do in some other states.

J. BIRCHALL SR.

SAY IT AGAIN.

Rockford, June 27.—Mr. Lucas and some other good New Deal rubber stamps tell us that Gov. Warren did not say anything that hasn't been said before. So what? Many things need to be repeated so that they'll soak in. Didn't Roosevelt, on numerous occasions, say things repeatedly? In the campaign of 1940 he told us again and again and again that we would not go into any foreign wars; he told us again and again that we parents did not need to worry about the boys fighting on foreign soil. The best way, perhaps, to eliminate wars in the future is to eliminate Democratic Presidents entirely. This also needs to be said again and again and again.

J. P. GRIP.

REPORT ON SASKATCHEWAN.

Chicago, June 28.—I was very much interested in your editorial in last Sunday's TRIBUNE covering the recent election in Saskatchewan, whence I have just returned.

Your editorial would indicate that you have made an investigation and are familiar with the conditions as they exist there. I had occasion to talk to many people in Saskatchewan, as far north as Nipawin, which is as far as the branches of the Canadian Pacific run. In fact, I went up into the woods farther north and called on some saw mills and planing mills. I talked to some of the proprietors and some of the laboring men. It is my opinion, after talking to these people, that the election was a demonstration of feeling on the part of many citizens who are tired of so many restrictions which have been issued from Ottawa and by the present government in Saskatchewan.

I did not talk to any one who expressed any idea of being communistic or being in favor of collectivism, but they do want the restrictions removed so that they can operate in the way that they have from the time they were old enough to think until the time these many restrictions were issued.

WALTER VANLANDINGHAM.

THE PONTCHARTRAIN BARRACKS FIRE.

Chicago, June 30.—The recent fire which destroyed a good portion of the Pontchartrain barracks in New Orleans and also destroyed the personal belongings and the governmental issues of clothes, sea bags, etc., of the United States coast guards men stationed there, brings up an important point.

This fire was found to have started from defective wiring, over which the coast guards men have no control. Nevertheless, the government will not replace the clothing and apparel destroyed. On the contrary, the men are compelled to sign a pledge to pay the cost of replacement at the rate of $10 a month. Even if the pay of these men was much greater than it is, it does not seem right to treat our men this way. On the basis of the facts submitted, the government should rightfully and gladly issue replacement clothing without charge.

LET'S BACK OUR BOYS.

EXHAUST FUMES.

Chicago, June 29.—Why must the citizens of Chicago swallow gas fumes from the exhaust pipes of the motor coaches plying the streets? Other towns make the bus lines in their cities extend the exhaust pipes into the air above the street level. The city council should be made to breathe the air in the vicinity of Michigan blvd. between Washington st. and Wacker dr. any weekday during the rush hours.

OBLIGATION CONTINUES.

Chicago, July 1.—If at the time of divorce a woman is awarded the children and her former husband ordered to pay for their support, is he obliged to continue such payments after the woman remarries? H. J.

GEN. SOMERVELL URGES NO LETUP OF WAR WORKERS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 4 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the army service forces, today warned that the millions engaged on the home front battle must not relax and there must be no desertion until "complete victory has been attained."

Blaze Threatens Home of Theodore Roosevelt

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5 [Wednesday]—[Special].—Fire of undetermined origin broke out early today at Sagamore Hill, Long Island estate of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. The blaze, in the garage and gardener's house, threatened the main home which fire officials said was unoccupied at the time.

SHOWGOERS SEE HOW SYNTHETIC RUBBER IS MADE

HEDSTROM DAY.

Today is Hedstrom day at the Tribune War Products show. The day is dedicated to the employes of the Oscar W. Hedstrom corporation, Chicago, for their war production. The company will present a special program from 7:35 to 8 p. m. The Navy pier band, Chief Fred Nortan conducting, will play from 7 to 7:30 p. m., with a W-G-N broadcast from 7:15 to 7:30.

The actual production of synthetic rubber is demonstrated several times daily to visitors to the War Products show at Tribune Square. They can watch the demonstrator combine liquids from two bottles, stir the mixture a few seconds, then lift out the rubbery mass that is the basis for automobile tires.

The War Products show is in its fourth week and closes Sunday. It is sponsored by the United States treasury in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and the manufacturers of the scores of military weapons and supply items on exhibit. The show is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Phillips Key Producer.

The synthetic rubber demonstration is in the booth of the Phillips Petroleum company in the big tent. Phillips Petroleum will produce an estimated 50,000 tons of synthetic rubber this year and also is known as the largest producer of carbon black, which is combined with synthetic rubber as a toughener.

In the demonstration, a cloudy gray fluid is poured into a jar. This liquid is synthetic latex, composed of butadiene and styrene. When colorless acetic acid, which is found in household vinegar, is mixed with the latex, resilient synthetic rubber forms in the jar.

Parallels Actual Process.

The war show demonstration closely parallels the industrial production of synthetic rubber. Starting with crude oil, Phillips Petroleum company refineries and plants obtain butadiene, a liquified gas and the chief component of synthetic tire rubber, and styrene, a coal tar derivative.

These compounds are brought together in another plant, and the result is synthetic rubber ready for manufacture into tires and other war-necessary products which once depended on crude latex rubber.

KNEE HIGH CORN GIVES PROMISE OF BUMPER CROP

Most northern Illinois corn had reached knee height by yesterday and was pointing toward another bumper crop if the weather remains favorable. Many farmers spent the day in their fields, catching up on work delayed by spring rains, instead of celebrating Independence day.

A tour of the northern counties revealed that the oats crop looks exceptionally well. All of it has headed out and many fields are turning brown, indicating that harvest time is not far off. Wheat fields are a deep golden brown. Combines and threshers are expected to start work this week bringing in the grain.

The weather for the last two weeks has been ideal for farmers, for it not only has allowed them to make hay with few interruptions, but it also has hastened the maturity of the small grains and caused the corn to make a good growth.

'CEMETERY' OF ANCIENT BEASTS BELIEVED FOUND

MEXICO CITY, July 4 (AP).—A "cemetery of antediluvian monsters" may have been discovered five miles east of this capital, officials of the Museum of Natural History reported today.

A laborer digging a drainage ditch in Tepexpam last week uncovered a vertebra of enormous size. Since then other huge bones, including ribs nearly five feet long, have been discovered.

Museum officials said the great beasts of past ages used to travel long distances to reach a certain spot at the approach of death.

"These people who are offering you a bigger salary than I'm paying you—do you think they could use a guy my age?"

$200 LOAN
At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52
At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00
YOU SAVE $23.52
*Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly installments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In other case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.
IF—for borrowing $100 you've had to repay 12 payments of $10.07 each—that amounts to $120.84—which is $20.84 more than you borrowed. And $20.84, therefore, is what that loan cost you.
That same amount, $100, at Merchandise Bank would cost you only $8.00—on your signature only. It would cost you only $5.50—with one co-maker. So—here you would save at least $12.84—or as much as $15.34—depending on which plan you borrow.
Money In Your Pocket
What you save, in either case, is money in your pocket. It amounts to nearly as much as two payments on your loan. That's the difference between usual small loan charges and Merchandise Bank's extremely low rates.
If you need a loan, or want to reduce present borrowing costs, get in touch with Merchandise Bank. There's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged.

Fewer Leaving This Year for Vacation Spots

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE usual summer exodus isn't what it used to be before the war, for many who usually go away for the hot weather months are sticking to their jobs. Mr. and Mrs. William B. Greenlee are hoping to have a rest at their ranch in New Mexico, leaving next week, but their plans depend upon railroad transportation.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Winfield Ellis, their subdeb daughter, Gwen, and Mr. Ellis' brother, Robert Ellis, and his wife, are leaving Friday for Eaton's ranch in Wyoming for a holiday. Others planning a trip west this month are Mrs. Theodore Sheldon and her daughter, Miss Peggy Sheldon, a student at the Child Education Foundation in New York, and Miss Polly Sheldon, a Vassar student. Their destination will be Potter's ranch in Missoula, Mont., at which the Ralph W. Cornelisens and their daughter, Ann, also will be vacationing in August.

The accident on the west coast in which Lt. John J. Borland II. was seriously injured changed his wife's plans for going to Camden, Me., for the summer. Just back from Santa Barbara, Cal., Mrs. Borland brings the good news that her husband is out of danger and that before many weeks he hopes to be transferred to the Great Lakes naval hospital. Mrs. Borland's mother, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, is leaving for Camden tomorrow. Spending the summer with her will be another daughter, Mrs. Anthony Ryerson, and her young daughter, Sheila, and the Hutchins' daughter-in-law, Mrs. Chauncey K. Hutchins, and young Helen and James II. The senior Mr. Hutchins will join his family in the east later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Harvey and their three sons are spending the summer months vacationing in Santa Fe, N. M., but expect to return to their home in Lake Forest in September. While they are away, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne have rented their house for the summer.

The Nelson L. Bucks have opened their Thunder Mountain ranch at Crivitz, Wis., for the summer months. With them are their son-in-law and daughter, the Winthrop M. Robinsons, and their three children.

Some Changes of Address.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker have opened their summer home in Santa Barbara, Cal. Summer neighbors will be Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Welch and their daughter and son, Joan and Edwin Jr., who have taken a house for the season.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck and her daughter, Miss Jane Affleck, now are in their new Garland av. home in Winnetka, having sold their former Humboldt av. house. The Fred G. Gurleys now are living in Winnetka, where they have purchased a home. They formerly lived in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Granville Jr. returned Saturday from a house hunting trip to New York with the good news they had found a home in Larchmont. The Granvilles and their two sons, Charles and Richard, will leave Chicago the end of the week to move to their new home. Their Crilly ct. house has been taken by the Frank R. Mortimers, who will move in before Aug. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams have moved to Lake Forest for the summer. Miss Kyle Adams has returned from her studies at Smith college. Young Bob Adams is in a navy program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Randolph Owsleys and their children will be at their Wauconda farm this summer, having leased their Lake Forest house for the season to the William R. Odells.

Delavan Lake News.

The summer colony at Delavan Lake, Wis., assembled earlier than usual this year so that gardens might be planted in plenty of time and family vacations made as long and restful as possible. Plans for the Delavan Lake club's third season include sewing for the Red Cross on Mondays and Thursdays, with Miss Edna Collins reviewing a current book on the latter day each week; luncheon and bridge each Wednesday, and an informal program of lectures, games, and dancing each week-end. Amateur sailors also will have their sport as usual, for the Yacht club races will be repeated again this summer.

Already in their summer homes are most of Delavan's Chicago contingent, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Griffenhagen, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Johnson, the George W. Borgs, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cox, the D. E. Gambles, the O. Victor McGrews, Mr. and Mrs. Burr W. Robbins, Mrs. Ewald Siebel, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stevens, Dr. and Mrs. Melford E. Zinser, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goes Jr.

Wedding News.

Miss Lois Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., and Burr G. Blair of Chicago, son of Burr D. Blair of Winona,

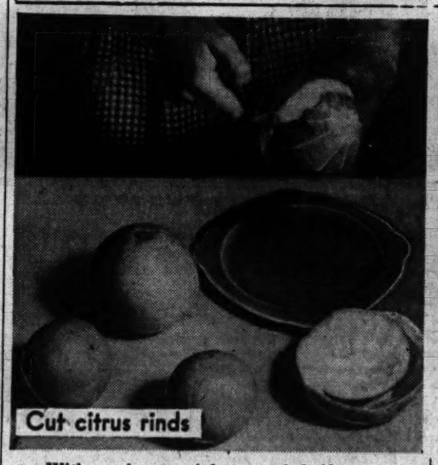
Mary Meade Fixes Orange, Grapefruit, Avocado Salad



1. With a sharp stainless steel knife remove orange and grapefruit rind, cutting deeply enough completely to avoid white skin. Remove peel in circular strips as in paring an apple.

2. To free sections, break pared fruit into two parts, then, with the point of a knife, release each individual section from the membrane. Catch juice and use in French dressing.

3. Cut thoroly ripe avocado in half and remove stone. Carefully pull off peel in strips. Avocados should be prepared just before serving to prevent discoloration.

4. On a crisp bed of lettuce or other salad greens arrange orange and grapefruit sections with slices of avocado. Serve with French dressing as a luncheon main dish salad.

Fourth of July Is Great Day for Algonquin

BY JUNE GESERICK.

Camp Algonquin, the wonderland of summer, echoed yesterday with the laughter of 320 children playing barefooted on the grass and singing in tuneful treble, "America, the Beautiful." In its own language, youth celebrated the Fourth of July.

Descendants of men from many countries, of many races and creeds, started early to make the day one which would lay like a wreath on their childhood dreams. The woodland pathways of the camp, from the dining hall down to the beautiful Fox river, became flag lined avenues for the Independence day parade.

The highlight of the celebration took place when the line of march ended in the grass banked swimming pool enclosure and Joel Hunter, secretary and superintendent of United Charities of Chicago, crowned Dolores Beckley, Negro junior counselor, as queen of the camp.

Ten year old Indian braves, the newly acquired tan of their cheeks hidden beneath lipstick war paint, cheered on participants in swimming relays and races. An 8 year old Indian squaw fell into the pool and was pulled out by a watchful counselor. Crepe paper dye ran down hot little faces. There was pink and white ice cream for dessert at dinner and a campfire sing before bed time.

The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., represented by D. M. Deininger, retired Tribune auditor, was presented by the United Charities' board of directors with a certificate in appreciation of donations totaling $498,307.80. The United Charities, which sponsors the camp, was represented by Mr. Hunter.

Camp Algonquin provides a chance for underprivileged children to regain the weight and color they lost during a winter in tenement houses. Under the kindly direction of Mrs. Astrid Save, the youngsters eat, sometimes for the first time, fresh fruit and vegetables. They have all the milk they can drink. It costs about $8 per week for each child.

Will you send a child to camp? Contributions may be addressed to Camp Algonquin Fund, Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Seraphic Secretaries.

It was a publicity man's idea and it was a honey. He chose a limited number of secretaries of top men in New York and awarded them beautifully lettered certificates. They read:

Benham Award of Merit
Order of the
Seraphic Secretaries
for unfailing courtesy, tact, politeness, charm, urbanity, gentility, civility, amiability, good temper, and sweetness
secretary of
WILLIAM SMITH
is awarded the degree of Impeccable Amanuensis.
[Signed] F. DARIUS BENHAM.

A Lot to Live Up To.

Today, unexpectedly you may come upon one of these framed certificates hanging on the wall of a New York office. "A lot to live up to," said one seraphic secretary, speaking of her own certificate.

From the idea grew the club of Seraphic Secretaries of America, limited in membership to secretaries of top men in business and professions. The first president was Frances Schooner, at the time secretary to Samuel J. Pryor, head of Pan American Airways. The president of the club now is Margaret Hensey, secretary to Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt. In the membership are included white collar girls with such interesting jobs as secretary to Eddie Rickenbacker, Herbert Hoover, Will Hays, Al Smith, Presidential Nominee Dewey, Lowell Thomas, Walter Hoving, Deems Taylor, and more notables than you could find in an hour alone with Who's Who.

Definition.

The club meets four times a year. This year the members have been busy with canteen work but held their annual election and dinner in June.

Did most of the members know each other before, I wondered. Some did; many had only a telephone speaking acquaintance. The organization, the girls believe, binds them together "so we can help each other," as one member expressed it.

Do they entirely get away from the office atmosphere when they meet? Not exactly. Frequently their employers serve as guest speakers. And, too, they fall to discussing what constitutes a good secretary.

Convinced that they should know if any one, I pressed the question. One of the girls summed it up in this manner: "The secretary should be so unobtrusively efficient that her employer never knows how much she does until she's not there to do it!" That might very well stand as a definition of one of the unfailingly courteous, tactful, amiable Seraphic Secretaries.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Grape Ice.
[Six to eight servings.]
1 cup water
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups grape juice
⅓ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Boil sugar and water together for 2 minutes. Soften gelatin in the cold water and stir into hot sirup until dissolved. Cool and add remaining ingredients. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze until mushy. Beat well and return to freezing tray. When firm, beat again and continue freezing until ready to serve.

Gala Throng Fills Post and Paddock Club

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Bright skies, a cool breeze, and a program of races that had been given patriotic names for the occasion yesterday greeted one of the largest crowds that has turned out this summer for the Arlington Park race meet at Washington Park. "They're coming in before we open up," grumbled a bartender at the Post and Paddock club, where members started arriving well before 1 p. m.

The large attendance helped to swell the coffers of The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., which is receiving the profits from this week's events at the track. At 3:30 p. m., an hour and a half after the horses paraded to the post in the first race, enthusiasts poured into the plant from an eight car special train. Even so, they had plenty of time to spare before the annual Stars and Stripes handicap and five other events, including the George Washington, the Gen. Eisenhower, the Yorktown, and the Valley Forge. Adm. Halsey and Gen. MacArthur are other fighting men for whom yesterday's races were named.

With their Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Pensive, entered in the Stars and Stripes, the Warren Wrights and their front row box guests had an especially exciting afternoon. Mrs. Wright looked gay in a tailored yellow linen frock trimmed with a blue belt and soft blue tie at the neckline. Her pretty young daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wright Jr. of Alexandria, Va., was wearing a smart frock of white printed in an all-over pattern of yellow butterflies and decorated her dark hair with yellow flowers. Miss Ruth Ostrom, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crane, Mrs. Samuel Krone, and Mr. Wright Jr. were others in the Wright box. Stopping by for a brief chat with Mr. Wright was another Kentucky horse raiser, Brownell Combs.

Whether hunch bets or study of racing records pays off more often remains a moot question, but there was nothing scientific in the way Mrs. Charles Borland collected on the afternoon's first long shot. A tipster's sheet blew from out of the nowhere into the Harry H. Lobdells' box, where the Borlands were sitting. Its arrival was an omen which Mrs. Borland did not overlook and which paid her well when she put her money on the tipster's choice, Sand Storm. The J. Howard Johnsons also were in the Lobdells' box.

Delegates to the convention of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners and their wives had luncheon at a large and festive party outdoors at the south end of the clubhouse, where a huge buffet table laden with cold meats, fowl, and fish reminded one of the popular buffets at the Post and Paddock club in pre-war years, when the meeting was held at Arlington's home track. In the convention group were the Benjamin F. Lindheimers, she in an attractive frock of gray printed in gold flowers.

The J. Clarke Deans and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knox of Aberdeen, Wash., back in Chicago for a visit, had a sandwich on the Post and Paddock lawn before going to their box. Mrs. Dwight Green, the governor's pretty wife, and her guests, Mrs. H. Brandenburg Leigh, Mrs. Norton Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adams, Mr. Adams Jr., Dr. Raymond White, Frederick Bowes, and Patrick F. Buckley, had luncheon in the clubhouse.

Gen. Roy D. Keehn and the Alfred O'Garas made up a race going threesome, and watching from the Post and Paddock lawn were Tom Taggart of French Lick, Ind., owner of Best Birthday, which won a race Monday, and his daughter, Mrs. Fred J. Slater. Among the Armin Brands' guests was Mrs. Frank S. Porter.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

This year marks the 32d anniversary of army nursing for Lt. Col. H. Elvira Helgren, principal chief nurse at Vaughan General hospital, Hines.

Lt. Col. Helgren.

Since her first assignment, in 1912, at Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., she has witnessed the evolution of the army nurse corps from a force of only 90 women to its present strength of more than 35,000. When Col. Helgren entered the corps, its members were known simply as "army nurses" and did not hold the relative commissioned ratings they now have. Their pay was $50 a month and maintenance, a status which was changed by an act of congress in 1920, granting nurses relative officers' ranks and commensurate compensation.

From Walter Reed, Col. Helgren was sent to Manila, P. I., where she worked from 1914 to 1916. She spent the following two years at various stations in the United States and then sailed for France in 1918 as a member of the staff of base hospital No. 115. The unit was situated at Vichy, caring for American war casualties until it was ordered back to this country in April, 1919.

Col. Helgren spent the succeeding 17 years on duty in the United States and, in 1936, again was sent overseas, this time for three years, as chief nurse in the army hospital at Honolulu. She returned in March, 1939, and was assigned as chief nurse at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis.

She was promoted to the rank of captain in 1941, to major last year, and attained her present rating last March. Col. Helgren came to Vaughan from Camp Bowie, Texas.

Born in Aurora, Nurse Helgren attended the West Side hospital school of nursing in Chicago. Her sister, Mrs. Vincent Ross, lives at 73 W. Elm st.

Gabrielle V. Hyldahl, whose Chicago home is at 6930 South Shore dr., has been promoted to the rank of 1st lieutenant in the WAC, headquarters of the army 6th service command announces. Lt. Hyldahl is stationed in the alien investigating section of the personnel security branch of the security and intelligence division of the command. As a civilian, she was a credit investigator. She was graduated from the law school of Northwestern university.

Lt. Hyldahl is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Verbrugghen Hyldahl of Minneapolis, Minn., and of the late Henri Hyldahl, who was conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra from 1921 until his retirement in 1932. WAC Hyldahl was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in April, 1943, and came on duty in the command last December.

Newest Styles in Swim Suits Brief and Gay

BY REA SEEGER.

This year's swim suits unquestionably have been reduced to the minimum—in length, breadth, and yardage. Microscopic bra tops are not much wider than six inches not counting the bow tie, shorts are definitely brief, and the top skirts that cover them are shorter than ever before. Cotton and jersey are the two popular materials, with brilliant colored printed jerseys giving the cotton prints a good race for supremacy. The single strap halter bra tops are causing as much pro and con talk as the reduced silhouettes.

Skirted swim suits made of striped seersucker are better than ever before. The very full ballerina skirts, tho so shockingly short, are knockout contrasts for figure curves and sun tanned skin. Brown and white and pale blue and white striped seersucker are telling foils for a bronzed epidermis. Some of the more youthful suits made of printed cotton copy the naive sub-deb dresses, cut with low square-cut necklines edged with frilled ruffles of the material or of embroidery. Striped piques, a few black and white satins, and a few elasticized swim suits complete the collections.

Play clothes, consisting of time tested shorts and blouse cut in one piece, and button-on skirt still are tops as the best all purpose model this summer. The one piecer serves as a sun or active sports outfit. Add the skirt and you have a suitable combination for going to the store or street wear. Cool chambrays, plain and printed, airy mesh cottons, and stark white sharkskins and jerseys are featured in these play suit teams. New this year are the many models trimmed with coarse, white, wide mesh that resembles fish net for size and pattern. Bands of this net outline deeply cut-out back sections or make short sleeves and yokes. It's most effective over a good smooth sun tan.

Just Dreaming Won't Help to Win That Man

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Sometimes it happens. A particular gal, otherwise smart and smooth, may waste her time idly date dreaming about some special hunk of man who strikes her fancy; some one attractive, interesting, and intelligent with just a touch of Cary Grant appeal on the side. At least, she thinks so. Of course, this gilt edged dream man doesn't respond in kind—he doesn't send flowers; he doesn't call every night at 7; in fact, he probably doesn't even know the honeychile's first name. But the little gal has stardust in her eyes and can't see all the other smooth joes around her or all the fun she's missing.

Here's a typical letter from a girl who's all glowed up in the wrong direction and her plaint goes this way:

". . . He doesn't seem to take an interest in me. When we see each other we don't stop to speak but just say 'hi' and that's all. I'd like very much to go with this boy but it seems to be impossible. Other fellows ask me for dates but I have refused them, hoping that this other boy would ask me, but he hasn't. My girl friends tell me I am foolish to wait around but I don't care to go with any one else. I have also been told to go out with other fellows and show this certain boy that I can be popular and then he might take an interest in me. . . ."

Why not go out with other fellows, not just to "show this certain boy," but to enjoy yourself? There are too many good joes around to waste your time waiting for a boy whom you hardly know. If he thinks you are an interesting date, he may ask you out some time when he gets to know you better; but if he doesn't—just think of the fun you will have had anyway.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Fred G., South Bend—I discovered it was a help if I used an old atomiser to spray polish on a dust cloth. It does the work evenly. A fly spray would be as good.

Sarah H., Chicago—If you are a young housekeeper you'll find it is a good idea to keep your choice linens rolled on tubes and wrapped in paper. And, as a time saver, label them!

Mrs. Thomas S., Chicago—I live in a big old house which has chandeliers in some rooms. In summer I tie up these chandeliers with net, using a ribbon at bottom and top. This makes them look something like parrot cages, but it saves on dusting and cleaning.

Registration to Start Today for Children's Civic Theater Classes

Registration for the Children's Civic theater free summer classes in drama, music, and dancing will begin at 1 p. m. today in the administration building in Garfield park.

This will be the 28th season of the theater, which is sponsored by the city and conducted under auspices of the Chicago Drama league. Before the war it was centered at Navy pier, but when the navy occupied the pier, the transfer was made to the west side park.

Boys and girls from 8 to 18 are accepted for instruction, and the classes are held from 2 to 5 p. m. every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. All public performances are to be given this season in Thorne hall on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university. There will be a free public show each Monday night in August.

'One Is Missing'

By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

INSTALMENT IX.

NO FUTURE.

Mae laughed at Ellen. "What train are you catching, the Jungle Express?"

Ellen spun away from her and stamped out of the cabin. Mae's laughter subsided and she turned to look at the bulkhead. Sweat was dripping from the planks. She heard the splash of a crocodile close by the boat and listened to the eerie cry of some jungle animal. A shudder ran up her spine and her shoulders quivered. Fear was creeping into every cell of her body.

Then suddenly she pictured the somber figure of Capt. Jed Reed, with the huge bulk of Bart behind him, and her courage slowly ebbed back. Somehow, some way, the captain would save them.

Odd, she thought. I wonder where I got such faith in the man?

Jed Reed sank to his heels in the ferns above the small cove and brushed a hand over his blood-shot eyes. He was utterly fatigued and his powerful arms dropped wearily to his sides. But his grip on the Springfield rifle did not relax. That gun was as much a part of him as an arm or a leg.

Bart slithered up thru the ferns and propped himself on his elbows, staring out over the calm sea. "Each time the rifle cracked a little running figure stumbled, went to his knees and then was silent in the dirt in the most oddly grotesque attitude."

Jed breathed, "It was a dirty job. Like shooting into a stampeding herd of cattle. Frankly, Bart, I would rather have used grenades last night, but they were too scattered. How is it on the boat? Did any one see you go down?"

"No. They are all very busy preparing breakfast. The two women have taken the large stateroom aft, Banning is in the single on the port side and the two pilots have taken the double opposite that. The Englishman evidently slept in the upper bunk of the main salon."

Jed nodded. "Then they left our quarters alone. Any guns in sight?"

"A few revolvers. I had better go ahead."

"As you wish."

Bart got to his feet and disappeared down the trail. Jed waited a few minutes, then slowly followed after him, the rifle held in the crook of his arm.

He made his way around the small cove, and shoved thru the underbrush to the bow of the schooner, made fast against the land with thick hawsers. The boat's deck was covered with underbrush that hung down the sides of the hull to the water, effectively concealing it from prying eyes on shore or at sea. Jed stooped under the brush and made his way down the deck.

Ellen Banning was sitting on a skylight in a brilliant patch of sun. She was wearing only a man's dressing robe. Her own clothing had been washed and was hanging about to dry.

She stared at him with wide eyes and shuddered. With the green daubs of paint smeared on his face and arms, he was as frightening in the full of light of day as he was at night. She noticed, too, the dry clot of blood on his left shoulder, the fresh burn across his cheek, and the dirty bandage on his left hand.

Ellen sat up, ran her fingers thru her hair, then nodded at the bandage. "Did—did you hurt yourself?"

Jed's lips twitched and lights appeared in his eyes. He said, "I just barely managed to dodge a grenade."

Her eyes opened wider. "You were in a fight?".

"We wiped out a small Japanese garrison last night. It's something like hunting rabbits with a flashlight. The Japs demonstrated their willingness to fight at night, but they don't like it. Our navy could tell you about that."

Thinking that she might learn something from him, she said, "You have certainly led a peculiar existence in this jungle."

"Peculiar?" he smiled. "That is a real understatement. In Malaya, Mrs. Banning, you just do exist and that's all. Every time I open my eyes after a short nap, and find myself still alive, it surprises me. By all odds, Bart and I should have been dead a long time ago. We not only borrow from time, we're stealing it."

"It is a grim thought. Tell me, captain, what was your life like before the war?"

He looked away from her and the first warmth she had noticed stole into his eyes. "It was pretty nice. A haphazard sort of life, but every day of it was full to the brim. I doubt that you would appreciate it very much, but to me it was the only way to live."

Her full lips parted into a smile. "I enjoy adventurous living, too, captain. But do tell me about it. You had a sweetheart, of course. Or a wife? Or—"

"One in every port," he chuckled. "No; I'm not exactly the romantic type. I was just interested in poking into strange places and finding out what made everything tick. You don't make a fortune that way, but money means little in the islands, anyway."

"And after?"

"After what?"

"Why, the war, of course."

"O." Again he stared off into space and the hard lines of his face softened. "Well," he replied, "there's a little island in the Union group, not far from Tongareva, that I picked up a few years ago."

"You bought it?"

"The whole island. It's about six miles in diameter, with its own small mountain, hundreds of streams and two of the prettiest lakes you ever saw in your life. There's a small coconut plantation on the west side, but it's pretty well run down. I will probably have to plant all over again. But that is where I'm going when the shooting stops."

"Sounds nice." She shook out her hair, but her gaze remained steadily upon his face. She saw the hard lines return and the lips begin to thin.

He turned his head to look at her. "It's a pipe dream. Forget it. No one is going anywhere, especially to that island."

"You think there is no hope?"

"None whatever, I would be less than a fool to hold out any hope to you. You may as well reconcile yourself to the fact that you're trapped."

"Other people manage to live here. And I imagine that many of them escape."

He shook his head. "Very few. Bart and I could probably get away, but not you or the others." He shrugged. "But why talk about it? I could never make you understand what the jungle is like."

"I don't know much about it."

Mr. Bernstein's Ravinia Debut Wins Acclaim

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Leonard Bernstein, conductor; Joseph Szigeti, violinist. Presented at Ravinia Tuesday evening, July 4, 1944. The program:
Overture to "Egmont".....Beethoven
Concerto for Violin, D major..Beethoven
Symphony No. 1, E minor.....Sibelius

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The combination of a holiday evening, the debut of the much discussed young conductor, Leonard Bernstein, and the arrival of the season's first soloist, Joseph Szigeti, drew 4,100 people to Ravinia last night, and those who couldn't get seats had the extra magic of a full moon as they lolled out in the open under the stars.

It was Mr. Bernstein's concert, not only for his own unmistakable talents, but also because Mr. Szigeti had an off night, almost as if Gremlins rode malevolently on his usually silken bow. The eye and the ear inevitably gravitated to the slight young figure on the podium, a dark young man with a sensitive, sensuous face a little like David Lichine's, hands that gyrate so convulsively they scarcely could hold a baton if they tried, and eyes that somehow manage to be agonized, supplicant, and truculent without losing their place in the score.

A fascinating fellow, this Bernstein, dynamic, emotional, yet under complete control. He had the incisiveness of the Beethoven "Egmont," and the stature, and while he sometimes made the Chicago Symphony orchestra's tone sound coarse, that tone was invariably strong, resilient, and commanding. His way with Sibelius' first symphony came late for adequate review, but fortunately he will repeat it Sunday at his final concert—a smart piece of programming to make an exit of plenty of rehearsal.

We would have known more about Mr. Bernstein as accompanist had Mr. Szigeti been in better form, but even so the two styles would have been incompatible. Barring the numerous errors of performance, the Hungarian violinist plays Beethoven with a cramped style singularly unsuited to its ineffable splendor.

Last night he dwarfed it, and it was unmistakable that he was going to do just that from the instant of his entrance, when he almost tripped up those wonderful "stairs to heaven" of the solo instrument's entrance. From then on almost everything happened, until you could do no more than commiserate an artist who was just having an inexplicably hard time.

All these things considered, the accompaniment was able to accomplish little. But at least it was possible to know that Mr. Bernstein wanted to give the concerto fire and splendor and tenderness. It would have been an interesting discovery if he could carry out those obvious good intentions.

Mr. Bernstein will be his own soloist tomorrow night in Ravel's G major concerto, but he will not conduct from the piano, as originally announced. Herman Felber Jr. will hold the guest baton.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 4.—One of Ralph Wheelright's first pictures at Metro will be "Tenth Avenue Angel," with that angel Margaret O'Brien. Angna Enters is writing it, and M-G-M's up-and-coming comic, Keenan Wynn, also will have a big share in it. My congratulations to Ralph. He's worked hard for his promotion to producer. I remember him when he sent out stories about me instead of to me. . . . Sorry to hear of the Gary Cooper and Sam Wood bustup. This means "Jubal Troop," which was all set to go, is postponed and may never be made. My greatest surprise is Gary backing out. He and Sam did four pictures together, never had a scratch of the pen—only a warm handshake. And they were already planning, only a week ago, that after "Jubal Troop" they'd make a picture together in England. Must say, it doesn't sound like Cooper. Maybe some one's feeding him bad advice. . . . The stork is again hovering over the household of Maureen O'Sullivan [Mrs. Johnny Farrow]. Quite a family they're gathering together. . . . When Jennifer Jones and Bob Walker attended the sneak preview of "Since You Went Away" together, and fans wanted autographs of them, they were warned by a member of the publicity department not to sign. They didn't. Jennifer's building a big home here. There are some who think that means a reconciliation. . . . Mrs. David Selznick stops over in New York a few days, then she's off to Maine, where her husband has promised to meet her in two weeks for a holiday.

Got Her Way, All Right.

Deanna Durbin and Universal are lovey-dovey again. Deanna held out for technicolor and gets it in "Can't Help Singing." . . . Edith Leach, one of Tom Kelly's models, was seen on a billboard by Mervyn Leroy, who immediately started tracing her down. Now she's one of Metro's actresses. It was Kelly who found Jeanne Crain for Twentieth Century, Jane Russell, Brenda Joyce, Leslie Brooks, and many others. In fact, he's quite a talent scout. . . . Frank Sinatra read that Pvt. William A. Chavez lost his wallet which contained all his furlough money and identification papers. Frank made out a check for $100, mailed it to the soldier. . . . Elsa Lanchester continues with the Yale puppeteers at the Turnabout theater here. July 9 marks their fourth year.

Along the Old Indian Trail.

On the Santa Fe, dined with Mike Todd and Lee Shubert, and listened to their stories of show business until the wee small hours. I learned that Mike, who is really the white hope of the theater, entered show business as a writer. He thought up gags for Olsen and Johnson. I asked what was bringing him to Hollywood. He replied, mail was so slow he was delivering a letter in person. He and Mr. Shubert really came to look over "Song of Norway," which is the life and music of Edward Grieg, and which our town can take many bows for. After San Francisco it will be on its way to Broadway. Lee's story of how Gilbert [Porky] Miller wangled the play "Victoria Regina" from him is one of the classics of our business. Todd tells me Mae West has made liars out of some directors who claimed she was difficult to work with. He says she's one of the most coöperative stars he's ever met. He has great hopes for "Catherine Was Great," which opens in Philadelphia this week. Todd has less regard for money than any producer I've met up with.

Here They Come.

Californians will have a chance to hear and see Gov. and Mrs. Dewey. They'll be out before the end of summer. When Mrs. Dewey arrived at the Chicago Stadium, press men said in one voice, "Gosh! Isn't she pretty! She's going to be a big help in this campaign." She's not only pretty but very gracious, and shakes hands as tho she really means it. . . . Herbert Hoover is en route to the coast to visit his family. . . . The Preston Davies are here visiting the Cheever Cowdins. . . . Corinne Griffith Marshall is en route west. She'll be joined by her husband, who brings out the Washington Redskins to do their training here.

It Was Inevitable.

After all these years, Clifton Webb and Evelyn Walsh McLean met by the light of her Hope diamond, and they've been like bugs in a rug ever since. . . . Carole Landis is planning a big shindig for the Larry Reids. He belongs to the Fawcett publications clan. This is his wife's first visit to Hollywood. She's wide eyed like any other fan. . . . Rosemary Lane and Richard Crooks week-ended with Rosemary's old boss, Fred Waring, at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. . . . Olga Baclanova is in town—I hear about to test for one of the epics. . . . Gene Tierney's asking, "What does one have to do to get a cook?" She interviewed one on the set of "Laura" and thought she was doing all right. Told her dutiesc were light, her pay heavy. Cook said, "I'll report to work tomorrow morning. O, by the way, what time do you dine?" "Usually 8:30," said Gene. "You see, I have to work late at the studio." At that the cook rose, bowed, and said, "It was nice meeting yop, Miss Tierney. I wouldn't cook dinner every night at 8:30 for the king of England."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's two diamond response was on the light side, but it turned out all right.

With both of his four card suits bid by the enemy, West decided to open the six of hearts. The eight was played from dummy, and the moment East proved able to cover the eight, the lead was exposed as a short suit, since, by the Rule of 11, he would not have been so able if the lead had been fourth highest. Declarer won East's nine with the jack and promptly led a low diamond toward dummy. West ducked and the queen held. Now the heart queen was led thru East, who covered. Declarer won with the ace, then led the ace and another diamond. West put up the king and shifted to a club. Declarer cashed the king and queen, led a heart to the 10, cashed the diamond jack and club ace, and finally led a spade to the jack. West won, but had to return a spade, thus giving declarer his 10th trick.

30,000 Enjoy Army Bands in Park Concert

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

As a fitting climax to Fourth of July festivities, United States army musical organizations gave the first of a series of Tuesday night concerts in the Grant park bandshell last night before an overflow audience estimated at 30,000. The program was under the direction of Capt. L. E. Watters, chief of the athletics and recreation branch of the 6th service command, who took the baton to lead the massed forces in two American classics, Bagley's "National Emblem" march and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Altho the regulation size of an army band is officially 28 members, by combining the 344th army service forces band of Fort Sheridan and musicians from the 740th military police battalion of Camp Skokie, a formidable organization of some 75 lusty bandsmen was obtained, which filled the wide open spaces of Grant park with rousing fanfares. This was military music as slick and clean and precise as a second looey's salute.

Staff Sgt. Norman Stone, who was a violinist of classical persuasion in civilian life, and now is the bandmaster of the 344th A. S. F. band, conducted the first part of the program with an emphasis on verve and rhythm that might well be emulated by many a symphonic conductor. There could naturally not be much music of a serious nature on a program such as this, but in that curious oddity, beloved of every small town band, "Echoes of the Metropolitan Opera House"—which combines strains of "Tannhäuser" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" with Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz" and Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, which to our knowledge were never sung at the "Met"—some hint was given of the really imposing results that might be obtained from an aggregation of this type. And there was a good deal of real musical substance in the band's playing of a Victor Herbert medley.

Staff Sgt. Hubert Finlay, bandmaster of the 740th M. P. Bn. band, took over the group for a medley of songs of the services, with sections of the audience affectionately applauding their favorite branches of the service.

Popular music had its inning after the intermission, when the Fort Sheridan dance band took center stage, led by Sgt. Carmen Del Giudice. The hepcats moved on the shell en masse at this juncture and when Pvt. Bob Eberle, who used to sing with Jimmy Dorsey and was once in the movies, came out to sing "Tangerine" and "Besame Mucho" there was a miniature Sinatra demonstration of shrieks and squeals, presumably of pleasure.

In an Independence day address before last night's audience, President Franklyn B. Snyder of Northwestern university declared that "the prize for which we are fighting today is in essence just what it was in 1776—the priceless boon of freedom."

We are fighting with England, Russia, and China, he said, but not for them. "tho we shall help them in every way that is consistent with our national welfare. Neither, he added, are we fighting for "any vague concept called world-wide democracy, noble as that concept is." The fight, he said, is to "preserve this America of ours."

Dr. Snyder urged that civilians do their part in the war by buying war bonds, asserting that the purchase of bonds is "the chief obligation resting upon you and me on this 168th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence."

That Southern Touch Is Basis for This Movie

"SOUTH OF DIXIE."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Musical comedy.

MUSIC: Yes and no. I think you'll like some of the specialty numbers—but Miss Ella Mae Morse should not sing. And I mean the advice kindly.

COMEDY: Also Yas'm and No Sah.

DIALOG: Northern and Southern.

ACTING: Ann Gwynne, Jerome Cowan, David Bruce, Joseph Sawyer, Eddie Acuff, and Louise Beavers are especially adept.

STORY: Mr. Bruce, as senior member of a music publishing house on its last legs, is persuaded to claim that his prestige as composer of Mammy songs and the like is due to the fact that he's the last surviving member of a good old Southern family. The promoter [Mr. Cowan] invests him with a sweet Southern girl secretary who is to teach Southern manners and speech and the three go 'way down south where a great deal happens before the truth comes out that the "survivor" has never been south of Brooklyn.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Some.

See you tomorrow.

Minn., were married quietly Saturday and will be at home in Chicago until August, when they will go to Los Angeles, Cal., to live. The ceremony took place suddenly with no members of the family present, but Mr. Blair and his bride will visit the Thompsons at their summer home in Frankfort, Mich., before going west. In Frankfort for the summer is the bride's younger sister, Miss Pauline Thompson, who is a debutante of this season. She hopes to enter the University of Michigan in the fall. Mrs. Blair's previous marriage to Edward Carry Nicholson was ended by a divorce.

Engagement News.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mayne Stanton of Birchwood av. announce the engagement of their daughter, JoAnn, to Lt. John G. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Smith of Park Ridge. Miss Stanton attended Monticello college. Her fiancé attended the University of Notre Dame before entering the army air forces. He is now stationed at Maxwell field in Montgomery, Ala.

Mrs. John J. Bittel of Adams st. has announced the engagement of her daughter, Barbara Frances, to Pvt. John Carson Fenner of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Fenner of Winnetka. Miss Bittel is a graduate of the Sacred Heart convent and of Barat college in Lake Forest. Pvt. Fenner attended the University of Michigan and is stationed at Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's the way you sit, more than anything else, we think, that ruins or preserves your shapeliness as you mature. A "how to sit properly" campaign would be a great addition to the elementary and high school curriculum, because if the habit is well established in youth it undoubtedly will be retained in maturity. We mature women who've been habitually sitting improperly since we first sat at a kindergarten desk find it hard now to change our sitting ways.

The basic idea for proper sitting is to plump down squarely on your two hip bones, not on the end of your spine. If you do this you'll find that you automatically hold yourself better—you won't get tired so fast either.

But we nearly all sit too far forward on the edge of our chairs, with all the weight on the base of the spine, and our back curved sloppily in just the fashion that take resilience out of our abdominal muscles. We wind our knees around chair legs, too, and that's bad, because it means the weight distribution will be more than ever unequal.

When you sit, sit well back in your chair—preferably as far back as you can go. And put all your weight on the two big hip bones. When you do this simple thing, your shoulders will be properly squared, your abdomen flattened, your spine straight. You'll cross your legs at the ankle instead of the knee, most likely, and the set of your head will be prettier and even more prettifying than if you slouch.

You can sit this way at your desk, or in the car, or as you buzz back and forth by street car or bus. Instead of making the time you spend seated a time that contributes to fatigue and the eventual ruination of your good figure you can make it, quite easily, time well spent in preventing tiredness and preserving firm tummy muscles.

Parents Should Try to Create an Ideal Home

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Often in this column I trace the unhappiness or misbehavior of children to some mistake their parents have made in managing them. But I take pains, every once in a while, to point out that what children are is not entirely the result of what their mothers and fathers do.

I was reading, not long ago, a book which gave directions for the baby's bath. Everything in it was based upon the mother's possessing the most modern, complete, and expensive equipment. The fact that few homes could finance such a nursery and nursery supplies was not taken into account. There was nothing suggested that might help the young couple marrying on nothing a year, the mother whose life had always had a background of poverty, or those of modest income but no capital.

Where general advice is given in this column, and where personal advice is given in letters, it always is borne in mind that ideal conditions rarely exist. There are circumstances that we cannot always control—money, illness, neighborhood environment, relatives, marital difficulties, death, and these things I take into consideration.

But even so, we can't "take it" lying down; we can't pet ourselves, be "bested" by obstacles. So you, as parents, and I, as an adviser, would be lacking in courage, initiative, and determination if we did not realize that often where there's a will, there's a way, at least a pretty good way, and that we can modify many of those adverse conditions with which we are faced. We can give our children so much loving and intelligent care that they live at least normally, if not ideally.

After all, everything in this world takes doing; few good things are handed to us on a platter.

Trade Paper Names 'Voice of the Turtle' Best Play of Season

New York, July 4 (AP).—"The Voice of the Turtle," by John van Druten, was selected as the best play of the 1943-'44 season by Billboard, theatrical trade publication, in announcing its first annual Donaldson awards.

Margaret Sullavan, star of the play, and Paul Robeson of "Othello" were selected for outstanding lead performances in a poll. "Carmen Jones" was chosen the best of the season in the musical field, and Moss Hart, for "Winged Victory," won the best direction award.

The awards were named for the late William H. Donaldson, founder of Billboard.

GEORGIE DRUM WINS STARS AND STRIPES

CUBS MOVE OUT OF CELLAR; BEAT BRAVES TWICE

Take 1st Game, 7-1, and 2d, 4-2.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, who had been languishing in the National league basement since the first week of the season, moved out yesterday, bag and baggage, and settled in seventh place. They brought about cancellation of their unsatisfactory lease by plastering the Boston Braves in both ends of a double header before 31,719 and because there was no other spot available the visitors had to hole up in the cellar at least for the night. The scores were, 7 to 1 and 4 to 2.

Charley Grimm emerges from the door of the National league cellar.

Charley Grimm's now aristocractic seventh placers made a simple matter of the first game by mixing their bats with some able right handing by Bill Fleming. With Roy Hughes, Phil Cavarretta and Dom Dallessandro carrying the load, Charley Barrett was forced to get himself elsewhere after six strenuous innings and, meanwhile, Fleming plodded along so serenely that he accomplished a four hitter, three of the blows being clustered in the sixth for the lone enemy run.

Dallessandro's Bat Potent.

Dallessandro made mischief for the Braves in the second game, this time in support of Claude Passeau.

Dim Dom drove in two runs for Claude in the opening inning by frisking Armand Cardoni for a single and Passeau kept this lead intact until the seventh. But as soon as he had been whittled down by one run his mates resumed operations against Cardoni, the damage being extensive enough to keep Passeau on the safe side when the Braves kicked up a two hit fuss with one out in the ninth.

Error Aids Cub Cause.

With the help of a boot by Whitey Wietelmann and hits by Dallessandro and Dewey Williams, the Cubs warmed up with one run in the second inning of the opening game. They followed with two in the third, the ingredients being a double by Cavarretta, a pass to Bill Nicholson, and a double by Dallessandro. The two run application was repeated in the fourth when Stan Hack singled and Hughes doubled, the latter scoring on the wild return throw of his own hit. Hughes also was involved in a sixth inning run. He singled

"It's economical and dispenses with the need for gas coupons," observes Varga.

These Are the Hills.

These are the hills we used to climb
When honeysuckle fragrance filled the air.
The light that smouldered in your eyes was my light,
I loved the glamor of your ebon
hair;
These are the hills that listened to our stories,
That knew the fountains of our smiles and tears,
That heard us whisper softly of the glories
Awaiting us adown the distant years.

I wonder if they smile to see me taking
My way along these winding paths alone.
I wonder if they know my heart is aching,
For crimson lips I used to call my own.
I wonder if they, too, are yearning after
The mellow music of your buoyant
laughter!

Ten Years Ago Today—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE announced the opening of balloting for the College All-Star football squad to face the Chicago Bears. . . . Fourth of July double headers in the major leagues drew 200,000 fans. Lou Gehrig drove in seven runs as the Yankees beat the Senators, 8 to 3.

MALTZBERGER WINS NINTH FOR SOX IN 12TH, 3-2

Beats Senators; Lee Drops No. 9, 2-0.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—The White Sox, after an afternoon of almost constant suffering, which included a 2 to 0 whipping in the first game of their double header with the Washington Senators, won in the twelfth inning of the second game, 3 to 2. This second game embodied a maximum of anguish before victory was finally effected on a single by Leroy Schalk, his only safe smack of the day.

Ed Lopat was the starting pitcher and something of a standout, tho he was replaced by Gordon Maltzberger in the seventh after the Senators had scored two unearned and tying runs without the aid of a base hit. Lefty held the Senators to three scattered singles during his term, but that was by no means all. He tripled in the fifth to drive home Tom Turner with the first Chicago run of the afternoon and scored himself on a single by Wally Moses. Turner had singled.

After the score had been tied, and Maltzberger had gone in to strike out two batters to leave what could have been the winning run on second base, the White Sox were retired by Early Wynn in order in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. In the ninth Grey Clarke wasted an infield single. The Chicago tenth and eleventh innings were hitless. In the meantime, three lead off Senators had singled, keeping Maltzberger in hot water all the time.

Then came the windup 12th. Turner opened with a double. He dived into second face first and got his eyes, ears, nostrils and mouth so full of dirt he had to retire. Guy Curtright ran for him—and was forced on Skeeter Webb's attempted sacrifice. Webb stole second as Maltzberger fanned.

[illegible] Up.

Then Schalk singled to center. Webb scored and the Sox were to be in third place as soon as Maltzberger could retire the Senators, which he did in order, thereby registering his ninth victory against one defeat.

To let you know how baseball's greatest relief pitcher had to hang on to win, we give you the details of his mettle testing performance.

George Myatt opened the Senators' eighth with a single to left. Eddie Butka attempted to sacrifice and popped to Turner, Myatt was out trying to steal second, and Jake Powell fanned.

Stan Spence opened the ninth with his third hit of the game and Roberto Ortiz sacrificed. Gilberto Torres was given an intentional pass and Fermin Guerra sent a fly to Thurman Tucker. Maltzberger then struck out John Sullivan, the third successive inning in which he fanned a batsman to retire the side with a runner in scoring position.

Wynn Tries to Cause Trouble.

The home tenth was the third straight in which the lead off man singled. This time it was Wynn, and Myatt sacrificed. Butka struck out, and Powell walked, but Spence flied to Eddie Carnett.

In the home eleventh, the second batsman, Torres, beat out a single to Webb. Guerra flied to Carnett, and Torres was out trying to steal second. In the twelfth, Wilford Lefebvre and Wynn grounded to Schalk. Myatt flied to Carnett.

The Senators had tied the score in the seventh when Spence started the rally with a walk. Then Ortiz was hit by a pitched ball. The runners advanced on Torres' sacrifice. Guerra then smashed a double play ball straight at Grey Clarke, but the plump Sox third sacker, who has difficulty getting down low for pickups, cuffed the ball to the boxes, Spence and Ortiz scoring. Here Maltzberger replaced Lopat and struck out Sullivan and Wynn.

Lee Suffers Ninth Defeat.

Thornton Lee absorbed his ninth defeat and fourth shutout in the first game. The Sox got four hits off Johnny Niggeling. Washington scored its two runs in the first inning when Torres hit a single with the bases loaded, two out and the count three balls and two strikes. The Senators were the victims in Lee's lone success of the year, a 5 to 2 triumph in Chicago last month.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Wee Willie Pep and Big Willie Joyce celebrated the Fourth of July yesterday by engaging in hard semi-final boxing workouts for a 10 round bout in Comiskey park Friday, the New York recognized featherweight champion in Catholic Youth organization center gymnasium and Joyce in the Coliseum Annex gym.

Pep, 22 year old Hartford boxer, went six rounds with two partners, while Joyce confined himself to four rounds, also with a pair of mates. The rivals appeared in fine form.

Joyce Is Confident.

After finishing his training stint, Joyce predicted he would deal Wee Willie his second defeat in 75 professional encounters. Issy Kline, the Gary lightweight's trainer, concurred in that belief, saying his protege will not have difficulty making the stipulated 134 pounds.

That weight requirement probably is Joyce's biggest task and if he can reduce to 134 without weakening himself he should become the second lightweight to upset Wee Willie. The other is Sammy Angott, who beat Pep in Madison Square Garden last year.

Has Educated Left.

Joyce, who has not had occasion to carry less than 135 pounds in recent years [he weighed 139 when given a disputed decision over Henry Armstrong a month ago], is as fast afoot as his little foe. His variety of punches may not equal the repertoire possessed by Pep, but he has an educated left hand and carries more authority in his right than does Wee Willie.

Altho Angott is the only lightweight to beat Pep thus far, the champion's handlers say the opponent who gave the Connecticut lad the most trouble is Chalky Wright, veteran Los Angeles Negro campaigner. Pep dethroned Wright as 126 pound title holder [New York phase], winning 12 of 15 rounds in turning the trick in the Garden in November, 1942.

The conquest was Wee Willie's 54th in a row. He collected $12,000 for the assignment, a far cry from the $48 he received for his first main event in Hartford a few months earlier.

Ward's Sports Preview Over W-G-N Tonight

Arch Ward's Sports Preview, weekly W-G-N feature, will be devoted tonight mainly to a discussion of the All-Star baseball game to be played in Pittsburgh next Tuesday. Ward, who originated and promoted the All-Star contest as a feature of the 1933 World Fair, will be interviewed by Guy Savage. The program will be aired from 9 to 9:15 o'clock.

HOLIDAY CROWD BETS $1,740,293; BREAKS DAY OLD STATE RECORD

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's army of race enthusiasts yesterday smashed the Illinois state betting record for the second successive day in the meeting at Washington Park sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. The holiday crowd, estimated unofficially as 36,000, paid $1,740,293 thru the mutuel windows, an all-time record expenditure which displaced the mark of $1,681,395 established Monday.

The success of The Chicago Tribune Charities' meeting of five days donated by the metropolitan tracks thus is assured beyond the greatest expectations of the promoters.

Get Good Start.

There was little doubt after the first race yesterday that Chicagoland turf fans would contribute a record sum. Mutuel receipts on the opening event and the daily double were more than 20 per cent over Monday's contributions, and only three pools thereafter failed to increase in comparison with the previous day's figures.

The holiday fans wagered $228,858 yesterday on the Stars and Stripes handicap and this in itself established a Chicago season betting record for one race. Most of the speculators favored Pensive, the Derby and Preakness victor, which finished fourth.

Comparison of the two days of charities racing by events follows:

	Monday.	Tuesday.
First	$ 94,732	$ 128,065
Daily double	75,996	84,704
Second	163,147	152,387
Third	189,636	194,896
Fourth	178,700	181,225
Fifth	189,383	173,384
Sixth	207,912	220,345
Seventh	219,273	228,858
Eighth	184,604	183,153
Ninth	179,991	193,377
Totals	$1,681,395	$1,740,293

The value of the John Hervey handicap, which features the closing day of the charity program Friday afternoon, was raised yesterday from $4,000 to $5,000. This race at six furlongs for 3 year olds and up thus became the third best purse for the five days, being surpassed, of course, by yesterday's Stars and Stripes and by tomorrow's $10,000 Skokie handicap.

While several thousand patrons were in the grand stand and clubhouse by 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the crowd didn't quite equal Monday's at the time the national anthem was played, 45 minutes before the first race. Lack of transportation probably was a discouraging factor for some who attended Monday, when a few spectators waited nearly two hours to board loop trains after the last race.

The paddock railings were jammed at 1:15, when eight horses came from the stables preparatory to a parade on the track. William Hells' Pericles, whose sale price of $66,000 set a record for yearlings, attracted most attention.

The other equine stars in the parade were Albert Sabath's Alsab, Warren Wright's Sun Again, Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, Woolford farm's Signator, and John Marsch's Occupation, Occupy, and Free for All. The last won the Hyde Park stakes early in the Arlington Park meeting.

Pericles now is in training and it is predicted he will make his first start during the Washington Park meeting which opens Aug. 3.

Members of National Association of State Racing Commissioners were luncheon guests of the Illinois racing board in the patio yesterday. The hosts were Maj. Ednyfed Williams, board chairman; William E. Fay, and Frank E. Mandel. Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Arlington and Washington Parks, was chairman of the arrangements committee.

The national association will meet for its first business session this morning in the Stevens hotel. President Charles F. Connors of Massachusetts will preside. Beverly Broun, past president of the association and chairman of the West Virginia state racing commission, will respond to the welcoming address by Maj. Williams.

Charles E. Hagyard, president of the Thoroughbred club of America; J. A. Estes, editor of the Blood Horse; Maj. T. H. McCreery, president of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective association, and John Gaver, president of the American Trainers' association, are on the morning program.

$8,763,036 Bet on 4th; 3 Days Hit $24,554,661

New York, July 4 (AP).—A total of 194,057 turf fans wagered $8,763,036 at 12 race tracks today, making an aggregate of $24,554,661 poured into the mutuel machines during the three racing days over the holiday period. The amount wagered today was the second largest on record, being exceeded only by the $10,326,027 bet on Memorial day.

3 Year Old Runs Mile in 1:35 2-5; Claim Record

Seattle, Wash., July 4 (AP).—Track officials reported Okana ran America's fastest mile race of the 1944 season in winning the $2,000 Independence day handicap today at Longacres. The time for the 3 year old gelding, owned by J. B. Burnstein of Los Angeles, was 1:35 2-5, cutting one-fifth from the track record.

PENSIVE 4TH IN CHARITY MEET FEATURE RACE

Equifox Second in $59,350 Event.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Georgie Drum, a 5 year old gelding which only a couple of years ago was competing in cheap claiming races on the west coast, came up to the big time yesterday to win the 16th running of the $59,350 Stars and Stripes handicap before an overflow crowd of 36,000 at Washington Park. The winner's share of the purse was $41,000.

The big brown thorobred, a son of Black Forest and Music Box and owned by Allen Drumheller of Walla Walla, Wash., took the featured event of The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.'s, week of racing by a length over Howard Wells' veteran campaigner, Equifox, a 7 year old son of the great Equipoise. William Hells' Rounders, winner of the traditional Independence day fixture last year, took third in a field of nine.

Pensive's Challenge Fails.

The Calumet farm's Pensive, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Pimlico Preakness and the public's choice at 8 to 5 as the smart, fast field went postward, made his customary move as he entered the stretch turn, but he couldn't get up and finished fourth.

George Woolf, one of the nation's leading jockeys, was aboard Georgie Drum and gave him the ride of his life. He took him to the front soon after the start and rated him to shake off a determined bid from Rounders after entering the stretch. Then he had to hold off the challenge of Equifox, which always was within striking distance, and made a strong run down the grandstand strip and was gaining at the end.

Woolf Praises Mount.

Woolf said after the race that his mount surprised him and seemed to know his job better than his rider, while Freddy Smith, who took over the riding of the Calumet stars for Warren Wright after Conn McCreary suffered a broken wrist last week, declared he may have kept too close to the pace, for Pensive seemed to tire when called on for his usual closing drive.

Georgie Drum's owner has the satisfaction of not only breeding, raising, and racing him, but now of seeing him take his place with a long line of thorobred greats which reached the winner's circle in the Stars and Stripes. His name joins those of Blue Larkspur, Plucky Play, Equipoise, Discovery, and others of renown.

Near Track Record.

The winner's time, too, was comparable to the stars of the past. He raced the mile and a furlong in 1:49 4-5, a fifth of a second off the track record held by Misty Isle. Georgie Drum, well backed, returned $8.60, $4.40, and $3.40. Equifox was at $7 and $4.20. Rounders returned $5 to show.

The race was a great climax to a day of celebration for fans who came from near and far by foot, bike, automobile, and train. Standing room was at a premium after the first race. Then many of the crowd surged into the spacious infield.

These thousands came not only to celebrate Independence day and see the turf stars compete in one of the nation's outstanding events, but to participate in Chicago's great charitable enterprise, of which The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., is sponsor with the coöperation of the five metropolitan tracks.

Dead Heat in $2,500 Race.

Happy Issue, a 4 to 1 shot, and Sirius, a 23 to 1 bet, came in nose and nose for a dead heat in the secondary feature, a $2,500 event for 3 year olds and up at six furlongs. Chipamink was third in a field of seven.

Happy Issue, owned by the Happy stable and ridden by J. W. Martin, paid $5.80, $5.80 and $4.20. Mrs. V. E. Smith's Sirius had Tony Skoronski up and paid $20.60, $14.60, and $7.20.

Today's card goes back to the regular program of eight races, with post time at 3 p. m. The day's featured race, called the Stagehand has a purse of $3,000 and is scheduled for a mile. A colt which won national renown as a 3 year old, Howard Oots' Big Flash, has been entered with five others, Pirate, Choppy Sea, Martian, Bright Willie,

DANES ORDERED TO WORK AFTER FIVE DAY STRIKE

Report Germans Agree to Some Demands.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 4 (AP). — Denmark's liberty council directed the Copenhagen population to resume work tomorrow after a five day general strike and street rioting which wrung concessions from the German occupation authorities, the Free Danish press service reported today.

The Danish capital was returning gradually to normal following a German promise to meet these demands from the aroused Danes:

1. Withdrawal of the so-called Schalburg corps from the streets and negotiations on disposition of the group which the Danes charge was responsible for many recent disorders.

2. Lifting of the curfew in the near future.

3. No reprisals because of the strike.

4. The Copenhagen transport system to close nightly at 9 p. m. instead of 11 p. m. at the request of tramway workers.

5. Fire not to be opened on crowds unless weapons are in evidence.

Blamed for Shootings.

The Schalburg corps of about 2,000 men has been used by the Germans for counter-sabotage, the Danes charge, and has been responsible for many recent shootings and disorders in Copenhagen.

The Free Danish press service said the corps would be sent temporarily to Ringsted, in central Zealand, and that part of it later would be sent to the Russian front.

[The German controled Danish domestic radio said there was "complete quiet" in Copenhagen and that "life is normal."]

Street cars resumed operation today with Danish police guards aboard.

Shops Begin to Reopen.

Shops began reopening and provisions were being brought in after the lifting of a three day German siege yesterday.

The Germans announced that 87 Danes had been killed and 664 wounded in street demonstrations since Thursday.

[The Danish home radio said a "large scale" explosion occurred in Aarhus, Denmark's second city, today and "materials of great value were destroyed." The Swedish radio in a broadcast heard by CBS describing the explosion said "a part of the harbor of Aarhus collapsed and that storage buildings and ships in the harbor caught fire. Thousands of windows were broken and telephone communications were severed." The Swedish radio said 4 persons were killed and many injured by the blast.]

JOHN B. HITTELL, 71, PAVING CHIEF 30 YEARS, DIES

John B. Hittell, 71, who was chief street engineer for the Chicago board of local improvements for more than 30 years, died yesterday in Alexian Brothers' hospital. He lived at 1909 Farwell av., and had been ill for nine months.

Mr. Hittell retired three years ago, concluding a career that had included supervision of most of the street paving improvements in Chicago.

He was a past president of the Illinois Society of Civil Engineers; a members of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and one of the founders of the American Road Builders' association. Mr. Hittell is survived by his widow, Corinna. Private services will be held tomorrow.

LANSING BOY, 9, FOUND HANGED; CHAIR IN REACH

Patrick Moore, 9, of 1850 School st., Lansing, was found hanged by a clothesline from a beam in the basement of his home last night. His father, Roy, told police he applied artificial respiration until a pulmotor squad arrived from Hammond, Ind., but that the boy could not be revived. Lansing police, unable to decide whether the death was suicidal or accidental, said they were puzzled by the fact that a chair was within reach of the boy. An inquest will be held at 11 a. m. today.

WOUNDED DAD NEEDS WORD OF RUNAWAY GIRL

Corp. Lester P. Smith, 37, of 1641 North Park av., is in a hospital in Italy suffering from wounds received in the battle for Rome. Doctors have advised thru the Red Cross that he needs word from his daughter, Mary Margaret, 13, to help him get well.

But Mary Margaret, two weeks ago before she knew Daddy was wounded, left the North Park av. home where she lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Granger, who have reared her since infancy. Mary Margaret took $670 from her grandmother's purse when she went. Her grandmother said tearfully last night, "If Mary Margaret will come home, we'll forget all about the money."

Mary Margaret is 5 feet 9 inches tall and looks older than her 13 years because her pretty dark hair is wound in heavy braids around her head.

HEAR HONDURAS PRESIDENT TURNS IN RESIGNATION

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 4 (AP). —General strikes, which resulted in the resignation last week of Gen. Jorge Ubico, president of Guatemala, have spread to two other Central American republics, said reports reaching San Jose tonight.

A dispatch from El Salvador to the newspaper Prensa Libre said Gen. Tiburcio Carias Andino, president of Honduras, resigned today, delegating his powers to Vice President Abraham Williams, and that the congress of Honduras was considering the resignation.

The Salvadorean radio announced later that a passive resistance movement had broken out against Anastasio Somoza, president of Nicaragua, but gave no details.

[A dispatch from Guatemala said Gen. Federico Ponce had been elected interim president by the national assembly.]

WLB REINSTATES ONCE DISMISSED SEARS-CIO CASE

Washington, D. C., July 4 [Special].—The national war labor board today reversed a decision of its regional board in Chicago, which had dismissed a dispute between the CIO Longshoremen's union and Sears, Roebuck & Co. at Minneapolis for lack of jurisdiction.

The case had been brought to the attention of the house committee investigating the government seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. in Chicago as an instance in which the WLB itself had found it lacked jurisdiction in a case involving a mail order house.

In reversing the decision, the WLB ruled it has the power to draw up terms of employment in cases certified to it. It ordered the regional board to hold further hearings in the case.

BARRERA—Pasquale Barbera. Passed away two years ago today.
God took him home—it was His will.
Within our hearts he liveth still.
LOVING WIFE AND CHILDREN.

BATTERSBY—Fred L. Battersby. In loving memory of our beloved husband and father, gone four years today.
WIFE AND DAUGHTER, GERALDINE.

BEZARK—Eva Besark, who passed away a year ago today.
Friends, may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile;
Little do they know the heartache
That our smile hides the while.
How often do we tread the pathway
That leads us to her grave,
Where rests the one we loved so well,
But whom we could not save.
THE CHILDREN.

ENGENFELDT—Carl A. Engenfeldt. In loving memory of my dear brother, who passed away six years ago today.
LOVING SISTER ALFHILD.

Day by Day on the FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

July 4, 1944.

HELP shortages and augmented crop schedules make it impossible for farm families to enjoy as much summer time ease as in former years, but the war can't erase any of the natural pleasantness of July on the farm.

It still is possible to go out to the berry patch behind the shed and gather enough raspberries for breakfast. The wild roses that scramble over the wire fences on the Fox river road know nothing about the war. Sunday dinner still includes fryers from the barnyard and new beets from the kitchen gardens. The oaks and elms that dot the farm lawns cast the same shade as in peace time, and the hammocks under the trees are just as comfortable in the evening.

Rural Humor Still Abounds.

War changes many things, but it has no effect on the rustling sound of waist high corn in a broad field, or the sight of Angus heifers and bawling calves trying to push their way thru the herd to the water t

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

DELEGATES ASK IF MONEY PLAN WILL BE USED

Unreal Atmosphere Hangs Over Parley.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 4.—There is an air of unreality about the monetary and financial conference here at which the delegates of 44 countries are drawing blueprints for a new world economic order.

The big question in the minds of the delegates is whether the blueprints will ever be used.

"What are the chances that congress will approve these projects?" is the question that foreign delegates ask frequently. The question is not asked at the conference sessions. There the discussions go forward on the assumption the American government representatives have the prestige and influence to win congressional approval for the agreements reached by the conference. But the inquiry is made in the informal discussions that occur between the conference sessions.

Hint Decisions Made Earlier.

The American delegate who acts as official conference spokesman has emphasized repeatedly at his meetings with reporters that there are a great many decisions to be made here on questions about which there are many shades of opinion among the delegates. But the impression prevails that most of the crucial decisions were made in advance of this conference. It is the belief that the delegates of the United States, Great Britain and Russia are in substantial agreement on the major projects, the stabilization fund and the world bank.

The delegates from the smaller nations expect to make suggestions on such subjects as silver, but they are here chiefly to find out what the bigger countries already have agreed upon. Mexico is expected to ask special consideration for silver in the post-war monetary arrangements but it is generally agreed among the delegates that silver is a dead issue.

Bank Plan Laid to U. S.

Chairman Keynes of the British delegation has taken great care to emphasize that the proposal for a 10 billion dollar bank to make reconstruction loans and help develop the economically backward countries is strictly an American creation. Until Keynes' speech the discussion of the bank proposal had been subordinated to the other primary objective of the conference, the 8 billion stabilization fund. It has been reported that the bank proposal may be sidetracked. Keynes made clear, however, that the bank will get immediate consideration and is a necessary companion to the fund.

Keynes credited the bank proposal to "the initiative and ability of the United States treasury." The project is "conceived on sound and fruitful lines," he said.

Morgenthau Leaves for Speech.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, president of the conference, left today by airplane for Philadelphia, where he was scheduled to make a speech later in the day. He is expected to return here later in the week. Meanwhile the work of the conference is centered in the two commissions named to work out details of the stabilization fund and world bank.

One of the questions taken up by the stabilization fund commission relates to the method by which enemy occupied countries will make their initial gold and currency subscriptions to the stabilization pool. A proposal has been offered which cuts down the initial gold payments of such countries to between 50 and 75 per cent of that provided in the first draft. Final action on this has not been taken. It was originally planned that each member country would contribute 25 per cent of its quota in gold, or 10 per cent of its total gold holdings, whichever was less.

Countries principally affected by this proposal are Belgium, Holland, France, and other occupied countries. There is also some difference of opinion, it is said, whether the stabilization fund should attempt directly to facilitate the settlement of abnormal indebtedness arising from the war. The United States delegation opposes the use of the fund for this purpose altho certain other countries favor such a procedure, it is said.

Tells Problem of Stabilizing China's Dollar

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 4.—It is impossible to forecast at what level the Chinese dollar can be stabilized after the war, Dr. H. H. Kung, finance minister of China, said today. He is chairman of the Chinese delegation to the allied nations' financial and monetary conference meeting here.

The Chinese dollar today is worth 5 cents in United States money compared with 30 cents prior to the Japanese invasion of China. Great price disparities exist within China because of the difficulties of transportation, Dr. Kung said. Surplus commodities cannot readily be moved from one province to another. It is also difficult to import goods, he asserted.

Holds Inflation Moderate.

Kung said he believed China's war time inflation to be moderate when it is considered that she has been at war seven years and a large part of her territory is occupied by Japanese armies. The inflation is not as great as occurred in some European countries in the last war, he said.

China will meet by taxation 52 per cent of its budget expenditures this year, Kung said. This compares favorably with other countries. The remainder of the government's funds are obtained from banks rather than individual investors, he said.

Predicts Economic Progress.

Dr. Kung predicted great economic development in China after the war. He said there would be large scale industrialization. As industrialization progresses China's purchasing power will increase and her 450 million people will be a market for the goods of the United States and other countries.

He expressed the hope that the United States will take an active part in the post-war development of China. China will give protection to foreign investors, he promised.

ICC AID ASKS CUT IN MEAT FREIGHT FEE TO FAR WEST

Washington, D. C., July 4 (AP).—An interstate commerce commission examiner recommended today lower freight rates on meats shipped from the midwest to the far west, asserting that present rates are unreasonable and prohibit free westward movement of meats, particularly pork.

Midwest meat producers have contended that if they were given lower rates it would reduce retail meat prices on the Pacific coast. Far western producers vigorously supported present rates, saying they would be injured by reduced rates.

PRESSED STEEL CAR.

Please send me information on Pressed Steel Car company.—J. S.

Answer: The company is the third largest freight car builder in this country. Repair of freight and passenger cars is an important adjunct of the business.

During the war the company has also produced tanks, shell forgings, armor plate, and ship parts in large volume.

The company was incorporated in 1936 as successor to a company of similar name, which was in receivership. General American Transportation corporation acquired 16 per cent of the capital stock. There were outstanding as of March 31, 1944, 25,229 shares of 5 per cent cumulative convertible first preferred stock, $5 par; 57,644 shares of 5 per cent convertible second preferred, $50 par, on which the dividend is cumulative only to the extent earned in any year, and 744,736 common shares, $1 par.

Pressed Steel Car profit in 1943, after allowance for estimated renegotiation refund and contingency reserve, equaled $2.59 a common share, compared with $2.17 in 1942 after a contingency reserve which exceeded a subsequent net renegotiation refund. Per share earnings were $1.09 in 1941, $2.35 in 1940. Net losses were reported for 1939 and 1938.

Three quarterly, common dividends of 25 cents a share each have been paid so far this year. For 1943 payments totaled $1 a share, and for 1942, 50 cents. Twenty-five cents was paid in 1937.

Current assets of $19,952,990 as of Dec. 31 last included $11,270,455 cash. Current liabilities were $14,658,828, and long term debt $2,690,800.

EMBARGO WHEAT AT ENID, OKLA., IN LABOR PINCH

Enid, Okla., July 4 (AP). — Floyd Hague, permit agent in Enid of the interstate commerce commission, today ordered an embargo on shipments of wheat into Enid, but will issue special permits to those elevators which have sufficient labor to unload cars rapidly. The embargo became effective at 7 a. m.

Hague estimated it would take the remainder of this week, and perhaps longer, to unload cars already in the yards, and that there are 2,800 loaded wheat cars in the Enid territory. Shortage of labor, both on the railroads and in the terminals, is handicapping unloading.

WFA Closes Its Egg Price Support Plan

New York, July 4 [Special].—The war food administration announced today an end to its egg price support program. The announcement explained that the egg market had improved to such an extent that its support program was no longer necessary. In a tightening market better grade eggs are able to take care of themselves. Fancies still are short of demand.

Ready to Resume Buying.

In winding up its price support program, however, WFA made it clear that it was ready to resume buying if a renewed over supply caused any further need to support the market.

Market experts were of the opinion that it would not be necessary for WFA to resume buying. Dealers already are offering to buy back from WFA fancy grades of eggs they sold to the government at lower prices. In the course of its support program WFA shifted from fancy grades, which were short, to lower grades which were glutting the market.

To Hold Best Eggs.

The WFA announcement explained that as soon as possible it would dispose of its low quality eggs, but that it would hold its high grade eggs against a seasonal shortage in the fall.

WFA disclosed that under the support program it had bought 6,200,000 cases of eggs, or 10,000 cars [a car averages about 620 cases]. Of that amount 3,000 cars have been distributed to schools for school lunches, to other institutional users, to driers and freezers and for other purposes. The school lunch program accounted for 500 cars. Moreover, 225 cars went into "tankage" for animal feed. The trade has taken back 850 carloads.

GOODALL MADE HEAD OF FIELD'S REALTY SECTION

John C. Goodall, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, has assumed the additional dutles of head of the real estate division of Marshall Field & Co., Hughston M. McBain, president of the company, announced yesterday.

In other personnel changes Wallace O. Ollman was promoted from controler of the Mart to assistant general manager; Robert T. Graham was transferred to New York City to resume his former position as general sales manager of the manufacturing division of Marshall Field & Co.; Gerald A. Sivage, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, was named to succeed Graham as acting treasurer and acting secretary, and Leland C. Carstens was appointed general assistant to Sivage.

People and Events

Frank B. Smith, manager of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Palace theater for the past 17 years, and Henry Schreiber, formerly at Columbus, O., have been promoted to manager and assistant manager, respectively, of the Chicago district, which includes Kansas City, Des Moines, St. Paul and Champaign, Sol A. Schwartz, general manager of RKO's out-of-town theaters, announced yesterday.

Thomas S. McEwan, vice president of McClure, Hadden & Ortman, management engineers, and former seventh federal reserve regional manager for the war production board, has been nominated for a two year term as vice president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the nominating committee of the society announced.

AIR FORCE UNIT FORMED TO AID IN TERMINATION

Seek to Ease Effect on Economy.

The army air forces moved yesterday to soften the effects on the national economy resulting from terminated air force contracts. Maj. Gen. B. E. Meyers, commanding general at Wright field, Dayton, O., announced the establishment of a readjustment division within the material command to take care of all A. A. F. contract termination activities.

Col. E. W. Rawlings.

Col. Edwin W. Rawlings was named chief of the new division, which has a Chicago office at 39 S. La Salle st. operating under the midcentral procurement district of the A. A. F. material command. Col. Rawlings was commissioned in the air corps in 1930 and has been assigned to Wright field since 1935. He is a graduate of Hamline university, St. Paul, Minn.

Tells Goal of Division.

Col. Rawlings, chief of the resources control section of the material command's production division since last May, explained that the purpose of the new division is to set up machinery for the effective handling of contract terminations, cutbacks, and disposal problems which will arise as a result of changes in the A. A. F.'s tactical requirements.

"Altho the new division faces a tough job in terminating contracts and disposing of surplus equipment which represents the investment of millions of dollars, it is a job which can be accomplished with a minimum effect on the national economy thru careful planning," he said. "This is essential in order to place the affected facilities in a position to produce other supplies urgently required."

Seek to Soften Effect.

Col. Rawlings said that altho it is the duty of the material command to procure aircraft and equipment for the A. A. F. as economically as possible and altho economy dictates prompt cancellation of orders for equipment no longer needed, the new division will make every effort to minimize the effect of reduced requirements on both management and labor.

Gen. Meyers said the establishment of the new division reflects the importance placed by the A. A. F. on the vast job of gradual demobilization of war production in the aircraft industry after victory is won.

"The material command has done a first-rate job of development and procurement and we intend to do an equally fine job of readjustment as the requirements of the A. A. F. are affected by victory in any theater," he asserted.

Elsewhere it was said that when the aircraft industry—by far the country's largest industry—starts substantial reduction of its production program the effects will be felt thruout industry because of the large number of companies engaged in supplying aviation needs.

Tho many of the larger companies engaged in meeting the demands of aviation for engines, parts, instruments, and other items expect to drop such activities with the end of the war, there still will be the problem of shifting their hundreds of thousands of workers into other plants, it was said.

Expect Rail Bonds to Extend Advances of Last Six Months

Continuing a trend of the last two years, railroad bond prices advanced 10 to 25 per cent in the first six months of 1944 and appear likely to rise further, investment houses specializing in rail bonds reported yesterday.

The second grade rails, those which remained solvent by narrow margins or went into receivership during the depression years, appeared the most attractive to investors. Gains went as high as 25 per cent, some estimates showed. The higher grade rails, those which remained strong and solvent under the worst conditions, showed smaller price gains. These securities rose only 10 to 15 per cent, but dealers said they previously had reached such heights that only small gains were possible.

Earnings Inspire Demand.

The continued brisk demand is inspired by favorable earnings, reorganization proceedings in which a number of roads have scaled down their capitalization and simplified their corporate structure, and a more sympathetic and understanding attitude on the part of the government and public, the dealers said.

The new attitude recognizes that the roads are an indispensable part of national economy and are entitled to fair and impartial treatment in their race for competitive traffic, one leading dealer said. This belief was becoming evident before the war, but increased materially when the carriers began hauling enormous loads of war goods efficiently despite man power problems, he said.

Another agency reported bonds of reorganized roads were received by the investors "much better than anticipated," and ascribed this to the buyers' approval of the reduction in capitalization and fixed charges and a more systematic corporate structure.

Bond Averages Up.

The Dow-Jones bond average for June 30, 1944, listed it high grade rails at 108.46 against 96.50 a year ago and the same number of lower grades at 80.35 compared with 65.69 a year ago.

Viewing the investment outlook for railroads in post-war days as regards competition from air transports, and vastly increased pipeline, barge, and coastal shipping facilities, one securities dealer observed that there are certain loads which under all conditions the roads can carry more efficiently than other carriers, notably ores, coal, metals, stone, lumber, cement, grains, and heavy manufactured items.

Another aspect favorable to railroad bonds is the removal of the threat of government ownership, he said.

"The necessity for this has largely been removed by the improved status of the carriers, and their remarkable performance under war time strain as contrasted with the bungling under government operation in the first World war," he said.

INCREASE IN FREIGHT CAR LOADING VOLUME IN QUARTER FORECAST

Freight car loadings in the third quarter this year are expected to total 9,948,356 cars, compared with the 9,871,654 cars loaded in the third quarter last year, estimates prepared by the 13 shippers' advisory boards and made public by the American Association of Railroads yesterday showed. This represents a boost of 0.8 per cent.

Six of the boards, including the midwest, expect a decrease in loadings, but the seven others expect an increase.

Against loadings of 1,345,303 cars in the third quarter of 1943 the midwest board projects for the third quarter of this year loadings of 1,333,666, a decrease of 0.9 per cent.

GUARANTY TRUST RESOURCES SET ALL-TIME PEAK

New York, July 4 (AP).—The Guaranty Trust company of New York reported today in its mid-year statement that total resources, deposits and United States government obligations were at the highest points in the company's history.

Total resources were $3,601,236,269 compared with a previous high of $3,325,058,938 on Sept. 30, 1943. Deposits totaled $3,157,081,728 against the previous peak of $2,999,738,529 on Sept. 30. Undivided profits of $36,054,428 compared with $34,264,977 on March 31 and $25,453,136 on June 30, 1943.

The National City bank of New York and City Bank Farmers Trust company reported combined net current operating earnings of $7,880,609 or $1.27 a share, for the first six months of 1944 after provision for taxes and depreciation, compared with $6,727,965, or $1.09 a share, last year.

Combined net profits from sales of securities amounted to $5,762,846 against $1,289,898, bringing the totals to $13,643,455 or $2.20 a share against $8,017,863 or $1.29 a share.

Crude Oil Production Slips 1,870 Barrels a Day

Tulsa, Okla., July 4 (AP).—United States crude oil production in the week ended July 1 decreased 1,870 barrels daily to 4,582,500 barrels daily, the Oil and Gas Journal said today. In Illinois output dipped 700 barrels to 208,550.

CIVIC LEADERS JOIN TO SOLVE POST-WAR ILLS

W.W. Aldrich Heads Committee.

New York, July 4 (AP).—Formation of a committee of business and educational leaders to aid in the solution of post-war international economic problems was announced today by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank.

The committee was organized in coöperation with the Carnegie endowment for international peace. Aldrich said it would seek "to further the serious and competent consideration of the issues which confront all the free peoples of the world and which imply their useful coöperation in reconstructing their economy after the victory of the united nations."

Johnston, Gaylord on Board.

Aldrich is chairman of the committee with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, New York, and Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines corporation, as honorary chairmen. Its board of 16 directors includes Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Robert M. Gaylord, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the committee for economic development.

Aldrich at the same time released a pamphlet report on "World Trade and Employment" which had been submitted to the main committee by an advisory committee on economics under the chairmanship of Dr. James I. Shotwell, of the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

Plan for World Trade.

This report proposed a plan of action for the allies "designed to create a world of expanding trade and equal trading opportunities for all peoples."

Its recommendations included the setting up of an "economic charter which would define and assure the rights of traders and of investors in foreign countries;" restoration of war devastated countries by access to raw materials and export outlets, and multilateral trade agreements.

North Western Asks Right to Issue Notes for 6 Diesels

Washington, D. C., July 4 (AP).—The Chicago and North Western railway has asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue promissory notes totaling $366,205, bearing interest at 1% per cent a year, to finance the purchase of six diesel locomotives.
